Sattazans Named 1997 Outstanding Berks County Farm Family

Berks County's outstanding farm family was honored at a banquet Wednesday night in Fleetwood. This family is Dennis and Betsy Sattazahn and their twin sons David, left, and Douglas, age 13. The heifers are out of cow families with several excellent dams in their pedigrees and are 4-H projects of the twins. Photo by Everett Newswanger, managing editor.

WOMELSDORF (Berks Co.) - For the Sattazahn family, farming runs deep in their blood. Dennis and Betsy and their twin sons David and Douglas, age 13, farm the 140-acre place north of Route 422 on Smaltz Road, east of Myerstown. They were honored Wednesday night as the 1997 Berks County Outstanding Farm Family at a banquet in Fleetwood.

TIMONIUM, Md. — When the lights went out in the showring for the final time and the spotlight came on, all eyes were on Savage-Leigh Broker Dela -ET. Judge Jimmy Burdette of Mercersburg, Pennsylvania named the 3-year-old Holstein winner of the 14th annual Maryland Holstein Futurity. The contest took place here Sunday evening as the 1997 Maryland State Fair came to a close after a week's worth of activities.

Dela, sired by Conant Acres -JY Broker ET, was bred and owned by Kelli Savage of Knoxville. With energy corrected milk of 29,529, the VG 87 Dela followed another Savage-Leigh cow, Savage-Leigh L Ginna ET, into the showring as the second highest production cow of the futurity. Ginna was the overall production winner with ecm of 31,540 pounds.

Kelli purchased Dela's dam Lylehaven Jet Denise as a baby calf. She entered Dela because she was out of Denise, an EX 94-2E state production leader who was

National Grain Market

USDA-MO Dept Ag Market News

DAILY NATIONAL GRAIN SUMMARY

Export disappointments and board corrections pressured wheat bids lower, today. Corn bids were moderately higher in reaction to the decline in the U.S. crop rating. Strong demand for soybean meal pushed bean bids higher. Wheat steady to 4 cents lower. Corn steady to 8 cents higher. Sorghum mixed. Soybeans 1 to 13 cents higher. Egypt's recent tender for 50,000 tonnes of U.S. wheat was canceled, adding weakness to wheat bids. Slowed export demand and reported rainfall in Australia's wheat growing areas were also pressure factors. Higher corn bids were due in part by declines made in the crop rating, with good to excellent estimate down to 62 percent. Last week's est- imate was 63 percent. Reports that Korea bought corn from China after passing on a tender for U.S. corn, limited gains. Soybean bids climbed upward as demand for soybean meal improved.

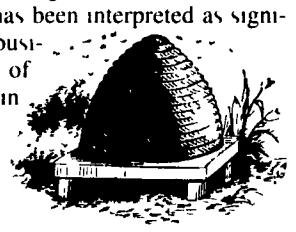
The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

SEPTEMBER 8-14, 1997

HOLY CROSS DAY, SEPT. 14.

NATIONAL HONEY MONTH

Winnie the Pooh ate his peas with honey Challah dipped in honey on Rosh Hashanah eve brings a new year of sweetness Folklore lists honey under remedies for arthritis, asthma, bedwetting, constipation, coughs, sore throats, and weight control The nutritional powers of honey are well-documented (although children under the age of one should avoid it) Dreaming about bees has been interpreted as signifying riches or success in business, p bably as a result of being "as busy as a bee" in profitable undertakings Diligence, hard work, eloquence, and wisdom are the bee's domain



You can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar.

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ Two tablespoons of honey and one of apple cider vinegar in a glass of grapefruit juice may help reduce your appetite.

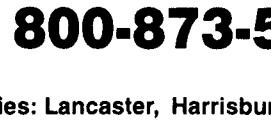
HONEY-GLAZED ACORN SQUASH

2 medium acorn squashes
4 tablespoons butter, melted
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon ground allspice
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/4 cup honey

Wash squash, cut in half, and cut a thin slice from the bottoms, if necessary, to make a steady base Discard seeds and stringy fibers Place squash in a baking pan with ¼ inch of water Mix other ingredients and brush it on the inside of the squash, reserving some for basting Bake at 350° F for about 45 minutes, or until tender, basting at least once during cooking

Makes 4 servings.



The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

On Holyrood Day (Sept. 14), the devil goes a-nutting.

When the wind is in the north, the skillful fisher goes not forth.

If the Sun in red should set, the next day will surely be wet; if the Sun should set in grey, the next will be a rainy day.

When the corn wears a heavy coat, so must you.

OPINION

Any Good Horse Doctor

We smile at the ignorance of our forefathers. Before vaccinations and pasteurization were developed, you let blood for a cure. In a book published in 1957, entitled "History of Veterinary Medicine in Lancaster County," we find that centuries ago there were no trained veterinarians. The neighbor who was "handy" with animals became the designated animal doctor.

Along with the first settlers came horses and oxen; horses were preferred. The first animals brought in for food were pigs. The land was ideal for pigs to scrounge and to root through the areas not yet cleared. Chickens came next, followed by sheep and cows.

The favorite breed of cows in those pioneer years was the large brindle and white cow with long, smooth horns. By today's standards it would probably resemble an Ayrshire.

The "horse doctor" was the first to gain some reknown, as he would usually locate in the cities and cater to the riding and carriage horses. This person was of little value to the farmer living in the outreaches of the county.

Dr. John Breneman (1813-1877) of Mt. Joy rode horseback to surrounding farms to administer to the needs of horses and cows. Dr. Henry Freed Breneman (1843-1912) learned under the tutelage of his father and wrote in his notes about a disease called "Locked-Joy."

"Locked-Joy: bleed largely, then apply chloroform until he opens his mouth, and give him 2 drams of acifidity every 6 hours and a dose of physic. This will relief if there is any cure for him."

The ignorance of our ancestors was hard to understand until last week when Knight-Ridder (national) News Service reported that scientists have now concluded that middleaged men who donate an occasional pint of blood to rid the body of excess iron are less likely to suffer a heart attack or stroke, undergo heart surgery, or require heart medication.

Any good "horse doctor" in the 1800's could have told you that letting blood will make you well.

Now Is The Time

To Keep Cows Comfortable

As hot as it has been, it is hard to think about chilling cows. However, we are entering the season when temperatures may fluctuate greatly and rapidly, according to Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent

Many barns are equipped with a lot of fans to move a lot of air That works great when temperatures are high But, it may cause problems if we fail to turn some of the fans off when temperatures drop If we are not careful, we may chill cows and predispose them to respiratory problems Remember, cows benefit from lots of fresh air. They also like cooler temperatures They do not like cold drafts So, do not turn off too many fans or close up the barn too tightly We need to exchange some air to keep it fresh and cows healthy

To Test Feeds

As we come into the harvest season, Glenn Shirk, Lancaster County Extension Dairy Agent, reminds us to focus on forage quality and the dairy herds nutritional needs We have had an unusual growing season Growing conditions varied a lot this year The quality of our feeds might vary more than usual To do the best job feeding the herd and making the best use of your harvested crops, be sure to have your crops tested. Then work closely with your nutritionist to be sure the rations are properly balanced Also, be sure to observe the herd closely and make adjustments as necessaryto fine tune your rations

To Form Ag Security Areas

Agriculture in many parts of the Commonwealth is under urban pressure from expanding metropolitan areas. People are moving to the country with no understanding or experience with agriculture These people believe they are living in a residential area instead of an agricultural industrial area. As a result, we are seeing more ordinances being introduced to inhibit farming operations and prohibit expansion of the farm business. To address this issue, the legislature passed the agricultural area security law in 1981.

By forming agricultural security areas, farmers are notifying people agriculture is the primary activity. The law requires every municipality or political subdivision with an agricultural security area to encourage the continuity, development and viability of agriculture within such area by not enacting local laws or ordinances which would unreasonably restrict farm structures or practices including nuisances. Also, state agencies must modify their administrative regulations and procedures to encourage the maintenance of viable farming in agricultural security areas. There are no penalties or added restrictions to farms in agricultural security areas.

Now is the time to learn more about agricultural security areas and consider becoming a part of one. More information is available at your county Penn State Cooperative Extension office. Agricultural security areas could be very important in allowing farms to expand and stay competitive.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

A MESSIAH UNAWARE

September 7, 1997

Background Scripture:
Isaiah 44:21 through 45:8
Devotional Reading:
Jeremiah 37:1-9

It may come as a surprise to many Christians to learn that in the Bible the word "messiah" is not limited to Jesus Christ.

Meaning literally the "anointed," this term appears in the Old Testament 39 times and is usually applied to the current king of Israel of Judah. It relates to the ancient practice of anointing someone who was set apart for a very special role as king or priest. It was only in New Testament times that the "messiah" was seen as someone whom God would send to vindicate Israel. Christians appropriated this title for Jesus, the "anointed" translated into Greek as Christ's and in English Christ. So Jesus Christ means Jesus the anointed one.

Now for the biggest surprise of all: there is even one place in the Bible, the Old Testament to be exact, where the title of messiah is given to a non-Jew, Isaiah writes: "Thus says the Lord to his anointed (Messiah), to Cyrus, whose right hand I have grasped to subdue nations before him and ungird the loins of kings . . ." (Isaiah 45:1).

So who was this Cyrus? Actually, the Cyrus to whom Isaiah is referring is Cyrus II, 6th century BC founder and ruler of the Persian Empire, the largest empire the world had known. Although he conquered many lands and people in putting together his empire, he was known for his clemency to the peoples he conquered. In the Old Testament he is remembered primarily because he permitted the captive people of Israel to return to Jerusalem.

A REASONABLE TYRANT

Therefore, we can probably call him a reasonable tyrant or even a humane conqueror! He killed a lot of people with his invasions, but after the fighting was over, he generally treated his captives reasonably well. But that is a big jump from "humane conqueror" to God's "messiah." In Isaiah 44:28, the prophet reports that God says of Cyrus, "He is my shepherd and shall fulfill my purpose." Then, just a few verses later, Isaiah called Cyrus God's "anointed" or messiah; in Greek Christos, in English the Christ.

God speaks to Cyrus at some length in Isaiah 45:1-8. He tells Cyrus that it is he, the only true God, who is enabling him to experience phenomenal military and political success in putting together his vast empire. The purpose is twofold: (1) "for the sake of my servant Jacob and Israel my chosen" and (2) "that men may know, from the rising of the sun and from the west, there is none besides me; I am the Lord, and there is no other" (45:6).

So God has "anointed" Cyrus, not to honor the Persian king, but for the sake of his own purposes. God is working in the world through Cyrus. Through him there will be a change in the plight of Israel — an opportunity to return to Jerusalem and rebuild it, God fulfilling the covenant he made with Abraham and his descendants. All this God will accomplish through Cyrus.

WHY CYRUS?

Did Cyrus know that he was God's "anointed?" We cannot be certain, but it is very unlikely that Cyrus knew that God had chosen him. In fact, Cyrus probably didn't even hear God speaking to him as we find in Isaiah 45:1-8. So Cyrus, Emperor of the Persians, was God's "messiah" even though he didn't know it, just as in Moses' day God had used the pharaohs to unconsciously accomplish his purpose.

But why Cyrus? I believe God anointed Cyrus to do his will because he was in a position to accomplish what God wanted. God chose him, not because he was necessarily a virtuous man, but because he was in a position of power. I also believe God anointed him because, whether or not Cyrus knowingly heard his voice, God knew that the Persian king was open to his influence. There must have been in Cyrus' personality some opening through which God could work.

All of this serves to remind us that God does not sit back and watch history unfold; his is part of it, working often through servants who are unaware that they are serving him. He is the Lord of history. And, as the saying goes, "He can strike a mighty blow with a crooked stick." The "crooked stick" doesn't have to be aware!

ENB has changed over the years - our main lobby, for example - but we will never change our dedication to the principles that have helped us and our customers achieve sound, steady growth

Is your business big enough?

Bigger isn't always better, in farming or in any other business. But there are times when it makes sense to enlarge, remodel or update

If you need several million dollars for your farm expansion, The Ephrata National Bank is probably not your bank And that is fine with us Our ag lending policies have always been geared to the small to medium sized operator. In over 100 years of serving consumers, famers and other businesses in our communities, we have found that well-planned, sensible growth is always better than growth for the sake of growth

Bob Zook VP Ag Lending

Many of your neighbors have come to appreciate our approach to ag lending Just ask them about us They're easy to find They tend to smile a lot Bob Zook

ATTENTION

HI-RISE LAYER MANAGERS
WE HAVE STIR AERATOR TO HELP WITH

FLY & ODOR CONTROL

BIG PERFORMANCE...SMALL PRICE

SIMPLE PROCEDURE: the aerator works directly into the bed of material, forming its own windrow. Windrows can be formed from piles of nearly any size. Alleyways are not required when using the Brown aerator, so there is a great reduction in space requirements. The aerator's reverse rotation works the material from the bottom up, and to the side, assuring complete mixing and agitation. LOW MAINTENANCE: the aerator is a simple design, the principle as a material mover has been proven with over 30 years experience in practical application. The aerator is hydraulically driven and equipped with patented wearplates or paddles, both of which are easily replaced.

Videon Buys 4-H Champions

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — The auction at the Delaware County 4-H Fair began, and Frank and Edna Videon arrived in time to buy both the champion market lamb and champion market hog, just as they had done in previous years.

The champion lamb, owned jointly by Andrea Oleykowski of Upper Darby and Holly Gingrich of Drexel Hill, was purchased by Videons for $270. Katie O'Keefe of Havertown showed the champion hog, which Videon bought for $700.

Medfords' Inc. in Chester was the highest volume buyer at the sale. Mike Clemen, president of Medfords, purchased five hogs, including the reserve champion owned jointly by Julie McClelland of Colwyn and Emily Cashell of Springfield. Meredith Ruzowicz of Newtown Square had reserve champion market lamb purchased by Jamie Schmid of Marple Township.

Among the 97 competitive exhibits the following champions and reserve champions were named. Horse - Alyssa Segich, Broomall; Tara Gray, Norwood; Michelle and Renee Shuman, Upper Darby; Sasha Kinney, Drexel Hill. Veterinary Science - Erin Yoder, Newtown Square. Woodworking - Stephen McGill, Marple. Colonial Craft - Renee Shuman, Upper Darby. Pet Care - Anne Louise Ennis, Merion. Sattazans Named 1997 Outstanding Berks County Farm Family ous pride in the appearance of the farm.

Under the prefix of Zahncroft, the registered Holstein dairy herd of 55 milking cows has a rolling herd average of over 21,000m 700f 680p in Lancaster DHIA. The top record made on the farm is over 35,000m 1,200f 1,100p. Classification is at 104 BAA, and they have received the progressive genetics award for the last five years. They have a good number of replacements in the barns too.

Dennis does not necessarily breed for indexes. He likes to use good bulls that have a good reputation. Right now this includes Luke, Duster, and a Canadian bull named Rudolf. Luke was used in the herd before he became popular.

One of the most important management tools on this farm is DHIA. "We feel we need some way of knowing what our cows are producing individually," Dennis said. "Until the supervisor hangs a milk meter on the cow on test day, you often don't realize what she is producing."

The herd is housed in a tie-stall barn with bedding mats and a gravity manure system. They are milked twice a day.

For Betsy, farming was new when she married Dennis. She has a degree in home economics education from Mansfield University.

"Not being a farm girl has given me more appreciation for what the farmer does," Betsy said. "I was at the grocery store last week and a farmer was baling hay across the street. If I had not married a farmer, I would not have given the farmer baling hay another thought.

"But the farm is such a good place to rear the boys. Here they build muscles and learn responsibility -- opportunities that non-farm children do not have. And I like the peace and quiet on the farm. Except when the mother cow is missing her calf."

The boys especially like farm life because of the opportunity to be in Grange and 4-H. They are five-year members of the Western Berks County 4-H Dairy Club and have 11 dairy animals between them. They also are members of the Marion Jr. Grange. The family has a computer in the living room, but the boys say they are the only ones that use it.

"You have to keep in mind the personal satisfaction you get," Dennis said. "I was born here, and I would not want to leave. My wife says I will be milking cows until the day I die. But when you see a cow family developing, that makes it all worth while."

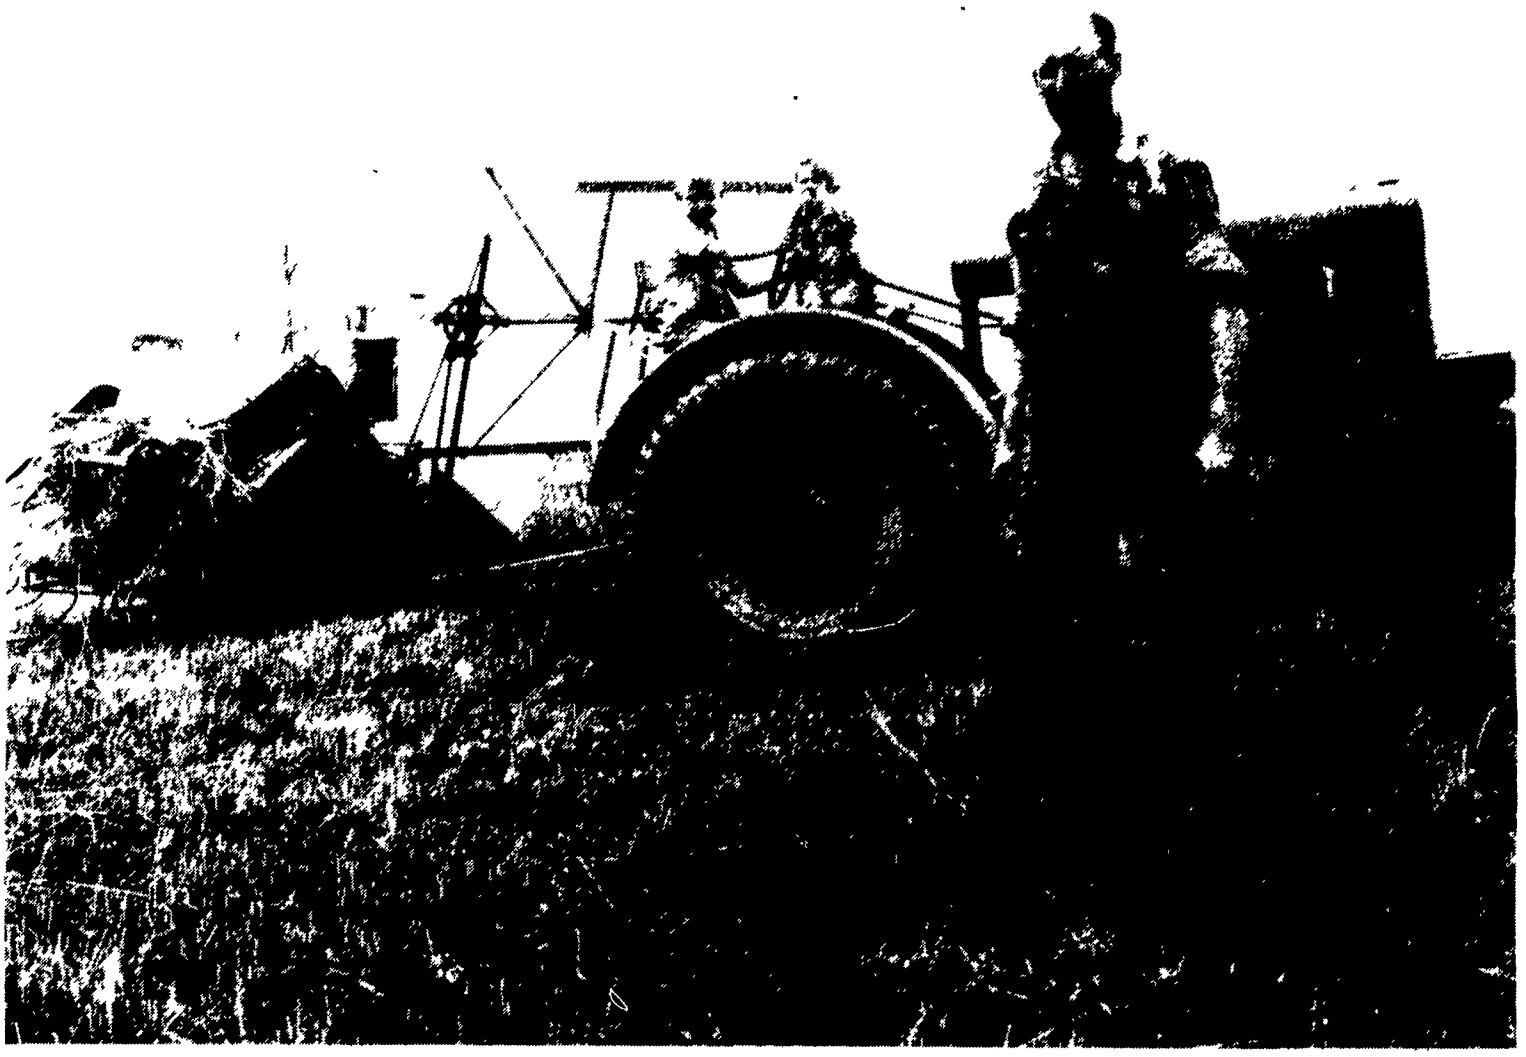
Dennis believes the future dairy farmer will experience large swings in milk prices, and new technology will come along. But he is not inclined to make changes just to be different. In fact, when it comes to the modern dairy cow, Dennis thinks she is too frail and doesn't last long enough in the herd. He likes to breed cows to match his own goals.

If he were to bring in any new technology to the farm, it would be automatic take-off milkers. This he says would save a lot of getting down beside the cows. But that's a long range thought.

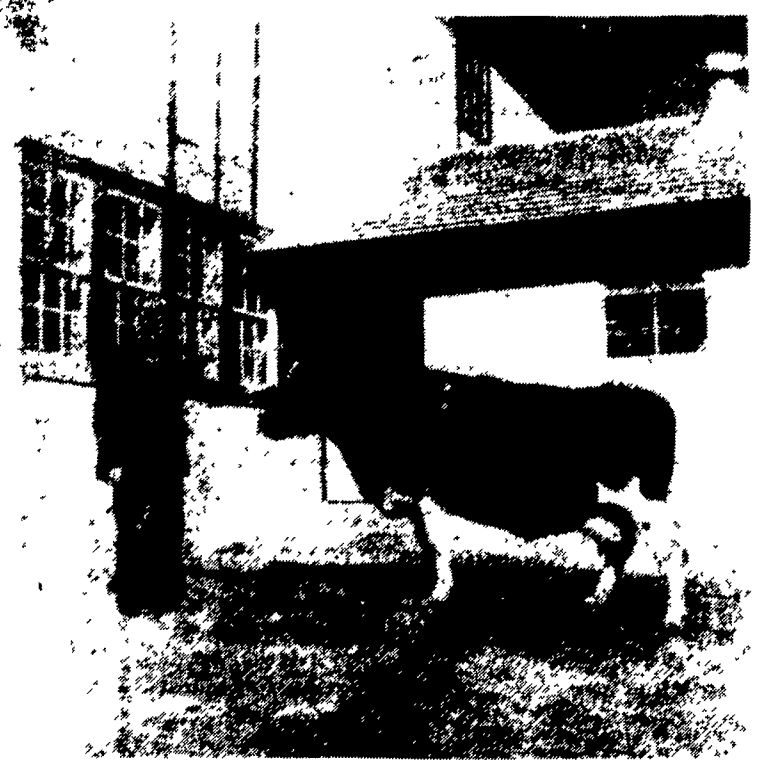
This is the third Sattazahn family to be named outstanding Berks County farm family. Dennis's brother, Robert Sattazahn's family, was named in 1972 and brother Clarence Sattazahn's family in 1981. The recognition is given each year in conjunction with the Reading Fair by the Agricultural and Horticultural Association of Berks County.

At the banquet, 4-H and FFA students were also honored. In 4-H, Erica Davis, Kutztown, and Katie Ramsay, Boyertown, were named. And in FFA, Jenny Althouse, Wernersville, and Laura Philips, Mohersville were recognized.

Everett Newswanger, managing editor of Lancaster Farming, was the guest speaker. More than 200 farmers and public officials attended.



In earlier times, Ray Sattazahn with his first tractor hooked to the binder. Clarence and Mary are on the tractor.



A foundation of the Zahncroft herd is this Lady cow that lived to be 17-years-old with lifetime production of 156,465m and 5,948f. She was a daughter of the first purebred cow Ray ever owned. The photo was taken in March of 1965.

Holstein Association Announcces Details Of Herdbook Structure

BRATTLEBORO, Vt. — Delegates to the 112th National Holstein Convention voted to change the Association's herdbook structure during the convention, held in Grand Rapids, Mich., June 25-28. The action by the delegates created a single, fully disclosed herdbook that replaces the Purebred Herdbook, Qualified Herdbook and Identified Holstein Female (IHF) program. It also created a system by which each animal in the herdbook will have calculated, recorded and reported a "percentage Registered Holstein Ancestry" or "RHA." This percentage will be calculated by averaging the % RHA of the parents and then rounding down to the nearest whole number.

The new herdbook structure will contain the following four categories of Registered Holstein Ancestry (RHA):

100% RHA-NA — The "NA" stands for North American. These are animals whose entire ancestry can be traced to the origin of the U.S. or Canadian herdbook.

100% RHA-I — The "I" stands for International. These are animals whose entire ancestry can be traced to the origin of an approved foreign herdbook, or whose ancestry contains a combination of North American and such foreign lineage.

0-99% RHA-NA — Animals of entirely North American lineage whose ancestry cannot be traced to the origin of the U.S. or Canadian herdbook.

0-99% RHA-I — Animals of entirely or partly foreign lineage whose ancestry cannot be traced to the origin of the respective herdbook(s).

Currently, for animals of 100% North American ancestry and unbroken lineage, the Holstein Association is printing "100% RHA-NA" on certificates. Until the computer programming is completed, this is the only document on which this information will appear. Once programming is complete, new certificates showing the "% RHA" may be obtained, free of charge, for all IHF and Qualified animals which have bveen recorded since June 30, 1997.

For animals recorded prior to June 30, 1997, certificates in the new format, with "% RHA," may be ordered for a price of $5 each when the original certificate is returned to the Association. This is a limited time offer, beginning when programming is completed and running through July 1, 1998.

The same general fee structure will be used for all animals. The current fee structure for Registered and Qualified animals will apply to all herdbook animals.

A special Start-Up Program is available to encourage enrollment of new cow families into the herdbook. Under this program the fee is $6 for each animal registered — application processed and certificate issued. Producers will have the option of having lineage acquired via electronic records for a small fee per registered animal. These lineage records will be used to determine the % RHA of the animal being registered. Additionally, a discount is available based on dollar volume of work submitted and for registering whole herds.

Several other Holstein Association USA programs will be affected by the new herdbook design, including classification, Tri-Star Production Records, A-Values, and National shows. Details on these programs follow.

CLASSIFICATION

1. A herd owner can select a base level of percentage RHA for animals to be included in a herd classification. This level will determine the required animals for all programs. All animals with equal or greater percentage RHA must be included. The default level will be 87%.

2. When a herd is classified under the appropriate program (Classic or Standard) the BAA will be calulated using the scores of all animals that are included above the designated RHA level. Animals included below the designated level will not be included in the calculation.

3. Only required cows will receive a CTPI.

Gor Wood D Holsteins Claims Supreme Champion Title

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga County) — Representatives from each breed circled slowly around the ring as judge Gary Rogers examined each one carefully before naming the supreme champion of the Tioga County Open Dairy Show.

The competition immediately followed the open Holstein show held Saturday, Aug. 9.

"I look at their individual characteristics," said Rogers. "When it comes down to making hard decisions, and I'm there right now, I'm basing my decision on the most important component of the cow, the udder."

After commenting on the quality of all the animals, he turned to Chenango Lincoln Santa, the 4-year-old grand champion Holstein owned by Gor Wood D Holsteins of Mansfield, and named her the supreme champion of the show.

Also in contention for the supreme champion title was the Jersey grand champion, Normandell Jedd Payge, owned by Cathleen Norman of Liberty; the Ayrshire grand champion, Blue Devils Star Buttercup, owned by Bradley Wales of Millerton; the Brown Swiss grand champion, Rocky Slope RL Mag Justine, owned by Mark Inman of Roaring Branch; the Guernsey grand champion, 'King Flash Gloria, owned by David Kriner of Mansfield; and the Milking Shorthorn grand champion, Honey, owned by Mike Pierce of Wellsboro.

The reserve senior and reserve grand champion Holstein was C Terbeck Broker Delore, also owned by Gor Wood D Holsteins.

Among the junior animals, L&J Delaware Holly, owned by Leroy and Ida Jane Plance, was named the junior champion while EsBern Delaware Geneva Gene, owned by Hal Courtney, was named the reserve junior champion of the show.

Capturing premier breeder and premier exhibitor honors was Es Bern Dairy Farms of Mansfield.

Good Breeding Defines Allentown Market Lamb Champion

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — A purebred Suffolk ewe spring lamb shown by Jacob Garges, Telford, won grand champion market lamb at the Allentown Fair last week.

Jacob, 16, son of Eileen and Paul Garges, showed the 109-pound medium weight champion to overall market supreme.

Jacob is a sophomore at Christopher Dock High School. This is the third year in a row he has won market lamb championship at Allentown.

Jacob indicated that winning a market lamb championship consistently at a large fair such as Allentown requires "good breeding and good lines." The ewe was homebred with their own stock.

He intends to show at the Keystone International Livestock Expo and Farm Show.

Billy Leib, 16, son of Bob and Suzie Leib, Mechanicsburg, also had a banner day at Allentown on Thursday. He picked up champion ag ed market lamb with a Suffolk wether and champion ag ed sheep. He was also overall sheep showmanship champion.

Billy is a junior at Cumberland Valley High School and will be showing at Louisville, Ky., KILE, and Farm Show.

Earlier in the day on Thursday last week, six breeds of sheep went before sheep judge Bud Martin of Willard, Ohio. Martin breeds Dorsets, Suffolks, and Hampshires. The following day, the remainder of the breeds were shown.

Following is a partial list of show placings.

Livestock Roundup Sale Spells Success For Exhibitors

BETH MILLER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

SHIPPENSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Michelle Cornman really racked up the dollars during the Cumberland County 4-H Livestock Roundup Sale held at the Shippensburg Fairgrounds.

The Carlisle girl started her run when Wenger Meats bought her 1,130 pound grand champion steer for $3,025.

Cornman then took home another $430 when the Dillsburg Farm and Home Center purchased her champion pair of market lambs which weighed in at a total of 190 pounds, for $430.

Also, Cornman sold her champion lightweight market hog to Agway for $380. That animal tipped the scales at 226 pounds.

Those were just a few of the sales that she and the other 4-Hers made, capping a season of hard work.

Among them was Bobby Davidson of Shippensburg, who sold his 1,150-pound reserve grand champion market steer to Hoss' Steak and Sea House for $1,300.

The heavyweight steer of Neil Darhower of Carlisle sold for $985. Linnea Hoover of Boiling Springs sold her lightweight steer for $835.

The market hog sale saw Shane Conaway of Newville sell his 240-pound grand champion market hog to Farmers Trust for $960. Kasi Sheaffer's 260-pound reserve and grand champion was bought by Greencastle Livestock Market for $500.

The champion pair of hogs, which weighed in at a total of 489 pounds and were raised by Jeremy Barrick of Carlisle, were purchased by Hatfield Meats for $660.

The big money maker during the market lamb sale was Kasi Sheaffer, who sold her 119-pound grand champion to Terry Shetron and John Conaway for $1,050. Shane Conaway sold his reserve grand champion, a 116-pounder for $750 to Hoss' Steak and Sea House.

The 125-pound heavyweight lamb raised by Kasi Sheaffer brought $500 from Keith's Farm and Dairy Supplies.

In the market goat sale, the grand champion raised by William Lieb of Mechanicsburg was purchased by Wayne Feeds for $390. His goat weighed in at 69 pounds.

Shane Conaway's 65-pound reserve grand champion goat was purchased by Eberts Paints for $520. The grand champion pair of goats, which weighed in at 142 pounds, were sold by Jennifer

Hayes Speaks At Research Field Day

SCHOENECK (Lancaster Co.) - Pennsylvania's secretary of agriculture, Samuel E. Hayes, Jr., was the guest speaker at the Brubaker Agronomic Consulting Service field day Thursday noon. "Agriculture is where America started, economically, socially, and politically," Hayes said. "And that is why America became strong. In earlier times, America could not have been what it was without agriculture. And today and tomorrow, Pennsylvania and America cannot be what we expect it to be without agriculture.

"We have the responsibility to be good stewards and good citizens. Historically, men and women associated with agriculture have provided the social cement to do what is right and keep larger society on the right course. America needs us, not just to feed and clothe the people, America needs our citizenship and our values.

"I pledge the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture to be a working partner with agriculture--not have all the answers but to work with you through the problems to the extent you would like us to do that.

"I want to as much as possible, to stay out of the way of agriculture. Agriculture is good and has been good and will be good if we allow it to be itself. We need rules and regulations for good. But to the extent possible I would like to stay out of the way."

The field day is held to showcase various research projects by the privately owned consulting service. Various agri-business products and machines are also on display at the event.

The site of the field day is the Mary Schantz farm that is both an agricultural and historical perserve. A very large crowd of farmers and agri-business representatives attended the event.

Field Day Held To Explain New Technology

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) - A demonstration of the success of bio-technology in corn and soybeans was the feature of the field day at the DeKalb Genetics Research Station on Colebrook Road.

John Wysolmerski, district sales manager, said the main goal of the event is to show farmers that new technologies are tools that need to be used in proper function and place. "We are trying to tell customers that we want to incorporate these new technologies into genetically strong plants," Wysolmerski said. "We first need to select the characteristic of production in an elite hybrid and then find the needed technology to do the job. We are not changing our numbering system at all, so the farmer isn't confused."

Wysolmerski said yields this year will be better than many farmers are expecting. But insect damage has been extremely strong with a lot of leaf hopper infestation and corn bore pressure. It's a good year to demonstrate the benefits of new technology.

In the future, technology will be introduced that curtails rootworm. And genetically enhanced corn will need little added supplement to rations for beef and swine production.

The field day included tours to test plots of corn and soybeans and a pig roast at noon. More than 300 farmers attended.

Jim Haldeman, regional agronomist, DeKalb Genetics Corp., explains the workings of BT corn to a group of farmers on tour at the field day last Friday at the research station.

Several Bradford county dairymen are the recipients of receiving PA DHIA services from Richard Bedford of Wyalusing. Richard's circuit consists of 40 herds which has the make-up of 2,700 cows each month. Same-day test reports along with state-of-the-art milk urea nitrogen testing continues to be popular among his clients as well as the rest of the PA DHIA service area.

While being raised on a beef and poultry farm in Sullivan County, Rich grew with agricultural experience and eventually attended Penn State University graduating in 1984 with a bachelor of science in Animal Bioscience. In the midst of taking courses he also found the time to be part of the Pre Vet Club and the Dairy Science Club. Upon graduation from college he worked for Agway Inc. in three different capacities for five years which included: management trainee, assistant manager and manager. In 1990 he made a career change to work for Purina Mills, Inc. as a dairy service specialist in Wyalusing until his occupation change as a PA DHIA technician in January 1997.

Richard is a hard working dedicated employee who always gives a hundred percent of effort in everything he sets out to accomplish.

Please feel free to contact PA DHIA at 1-800-344-8378 if we can assist with your dairy management records. Currently PA DHIA services herds in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Maryland, West Virginia, and Missouri.

Dela Wins Maryland Holstein Futurity

3rd in the MD futurity in 1991. Dela's granddam is EX 97-3E, a DOM and GMD, and was nominated All-American.

"I love the fore udder on this cow," said judge Burdette, "she is open ribbed and shows milk from the tip of her nose to the tip of her tail. She's all the way dairy, and moves so graceful on her feet and legs."

Runner-up in the futurity was an entry from the Harrison family of Burkittsville's Dun-Loafin Farm, MD-Dun Loafin Tab Ecstasy. That cow, VG 85, had ecm of 25,611 and was 4th overall in production at the futurity.

In all, there were 16 entries in the 3-year-old futurity, sponsored by the state Holstein association. Dignitaries in attendance included Max Moser, general manager of the Maryland State fair, F. Grove Miller, president and chairman of the board of the Maryland State Fair and Agricultural Society, and dairy and farm royalty.

Supporters of the futurity include: Nissan Motor Corporation, Priority Sires, Semex, Mid-MD Dairy Vets, Taylorsville Veterinary Service, Wayne and Cindee Savage, May Lady's Manor Farm, and The Formal Den of Frederick.

Cows On Test Increase

JAY MYLIN
Manager

Lancaster DHIA recently went over the 80,000 cows on test mark. This is up 22,000 cows from four years ago. Sixty-seven percent of our growth comes from new herds which were never on test before and 34 percent comes from herds transferring to us from other service providers. This growth could not happen without the membership's solid support. The best news for our members is that they are paying the same rates as they were seven years ago. The increase in cow numbers has helped protect the rates. We hope to see this trend continue.

Lancaster DHIA serves Southeastern Pennsylvania. For information on our services call the office at (717) 665-5960.

DHIA MANAGEMENT TIPS

Age At First Calving. Most dairymen have set a goal to have their heifers calve at 24 months. From our data on the milk production of over 11,000 heifers calving, we find animals calving at 22-24 month have a 305-day actual projection of 16,200 pounds milk. Animals calving at 26-28 month only produce 100-200 pounds more for the lactation. At 29-month production actually decreases. This shows us the importance of growing these animals well and having them enter the milk herd at 22-24 month.

To see the financial gain of having heifers calve at 24 months of age, let's use the following scenario. A heifer milking 60 lbs. milk at $12.00 CWT for milk will generate $7.20 of value per day. Subtract the increase feed cost of about $2.00 more per day than it would cost to feed a non-producing heifer. You have a $5.00 per day return. Five dollars times 60 days (24 month to 26 month) would return $300. per animal. Multiply $300. by number of heifers in your herd to see the financial gain to have these animals calve at 24 months of age.

Milk Floor Price Petitions

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU) is urging dairy farmers to fill out and mail in milk floor price petitions sent to them in the last few weeks as part of a national floor price campaign.

Farmers Union members from throughout the nation will present the signed petitions to government leaders during NFU's annual legislative fly-in, Sept.6-10, in Washington, D.C. The group is scheduled to meet with President Bill Clinton during their fly-in. Farmers Union members also will present the petitions to U.S. Department of Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman and congressional leaders.

"Farmers Union has received thousands of petitions at its state and national offices and has fielded hundreds of calls from producers who support the campaign," said PFU President Robert Junk. "We believe there are a lot more producers, businesses and consumers that support the campaign but who may not be aware of the urgency."

Coinciding with the NFU fly-in, a news conference to highlight the plight of the nation's family dairy farmers will be held in Washington, D.C., at noon Sept. 9. It is being sponsored by Farmers Union, the California Dairy Campaign, the National Family Farm Coalition and others.

"Farmers cannot continue to produce milk at prices at or below those of 20 years ago and expect to stay in business, and when dairy farmers go out of business, related sectors of the economy will suffer as well," Junk said.

Field Representatives Join Land O'Lakes

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Land O'Lakes, Inc. recently added two new members to its field representative team, it was announced by Don M. Breiner, manager of quality and field services.

Megan S. Moyer of Schuylkill Haven and Brian A. Riley of James Creek will work with Land O'Lakes members in Pennsylvania. They will conduct farm inspections, provide quality milk services, and offer on-farm consulting.

Moyer will be serving members in Juniata, Perry, and Snyder counties. A 1996 graduate of Penn State University, she earned a bachelor's degree in dairy and animal science. She was born and raised on her family's 350-acre dairy farm in Schuylkill County.

Prior to joining Land O'Lakes, Moyer worked full time on two different dairy farms. She also worked in three different milk processing plants, including the Penn State Creamery where she helped make ice cream, cheese and sour cream.

Brian Riley will work with Land O'Lakes members in southern Lancaster County. A 1997 graduate of Penn State University, Riley received a bachelor's degree in dairy and animal science. During summer breaks from college, he worked on numerous dairy and livestock farms.

Spring Provides Accurate Planting

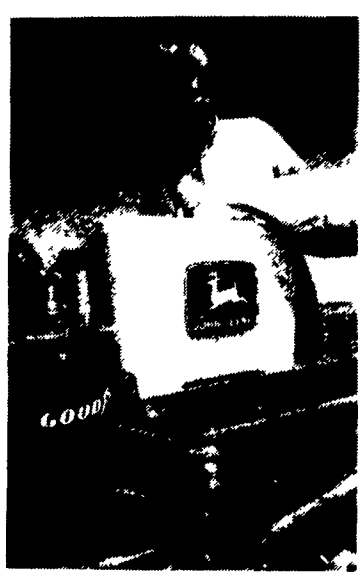
MOLINE, Ill. — Goodyear products don't just cushion the ride of John Deere. An innovative application of a Goodyear air spring also helps farmers worldwide plant seed accurately.

Super Cushion air springs, normally used to soften the ride for truck and bus drivers and their cargoes, are enhancing seeding precision and operator convenience on select models of Deere's new MaxEmergePlus planters, according to John Grafton, Goodyear manager for air springs.

Rain, drought, wind, compacted soil and no-till fields can plague a seed's odyssey. MaxEmergePlus planters with air springs increase the chance of germination, Grafton said.

Springs are used to increase downforce to planter row units and improve seed placement in tough soil conditions, Deere marketing representative Dave Fortin said. Goodyear air springs replace steel springs found on conventional agricultural equipment.

Air springs, pressurized by a small compressor on the planter frame, generate up to 400 pounds-per-square-inch downforce for proper soil penetration even under adverse conditions.



Dave Fortin, John Deere marketing manager, loads seed into the new MaxEmergePlus seed planter. Goodyear Super Cushion air springs deliver consistent down-force up to 400 pounds-per-square-inch to help penetrate even adverse soil conditions to precise planting depths.

Grafton said, "Air springs have been used on trucks and cars for years, but new applications are being developed to support agricultural and industrial functions."

Deere marketers said seed planters are a major business segment of the multi-billion-dollar agricultural equipment industry. "Without proper planting, there's nothing to nurture and harvest," Fortin said.

"Mother Nature provides a very narrow window for planting," he said. "Farmers need reliable, high-performance equipment to get their seed into the ground without a lot of downtime."

Adjusting steel springs on several row units can be time consuming. "But one quick air-pressure adjustment automatically changes the pneumatic downforce on all units," Fortin said. "Air springs combine accuracy and ease with centralized control and most important, infinite variability."

And the downforce can easily be removed from splitter row units on narrow-row planters, making it easier to adjust for row widths, he added.

Machine Applies Compost

BIRD IN HAND (Lancaster Co.) — Millcreek Manufacturing Company announces introduction of its new Row Mulcher, a machine that automatically applies compost and organic mulch in rows for agricultural applications.

In field tests, the machine has proven effective for applying compost and organic mulch on a variety of crops, including grapes, blueberries and other bramble fruits, citrus and other orchard fruits, vegetables, and for nursery plants.

In addition to compost, the Row Mulcher also applies wood chips, mushroom soil, composted bark, sawdust, compost and soil mixtures, manure with chopped straw, and virtually any organic material. Operators can adjust the depth and width of the mulch spread pattern from 18 inches to 48 inches wide, and from ½ inch to 10 inches deep with a combination of built-in controls.

The Millcreek Row Mulcher automatically applies all types of flowable organic mulch and compost to crops planted in rows, such as berries, grapes, citrus and fruit trees, vegetables, and nursery plants.

"We have tried to make organic mulch and compost application more efficient and cost effective for growers," said Joe Glick, Millcreek president. "The use of compost and organic mulching materials helps reduce herbicide applications for weed control, increases soil moisture retention, and can help improve soil conditions. We have adapted simple, proven spreader technology to help more growers make more extensive use of organic mulch and compost."

The Millcreek Row Mulcher eliminates the expense of hand labor for mulch and compost application for both large and small growers. It allows a single operator to apply organic materials to a typical acre of rows in about two hours.

Deere Precision Farming Introduces Combine Yield Monitor

MOLINE, Ill. — John Deere Precision Farming has announced its GreenStar combine yield-monitoring system for all John Deere Maximizer™ combines.

This field-installed option provides a cost-effective way for producers to introduce themselves to the benefits of data collection that John Deere GreenStar products can provide. The system is programmed for a wide variety of crops, including wheat, corn, soybeans, rice, oats, sorghum, barley, and canola.

The yield-monitoring system measures both the yield and the moisture of the crop as it's being harvested and shows the information on the GreenStar display located in the cab. The system also permits operators to obtain summary information on wet and dry yield, average moisture, acres harvested, and productivity for each field as well as for each crop harvested during the season.

The yield-monitoring system shares many of the same components used in the GreenStar combine yield-mapping system, which makes it easy to convert the monitoring system to the full-featured mapping system later on.

"Now producers can start with yield monitoring and move to mapping at their own pace with a system of components designed from the start to work together by the people who know John Deere combines best," said Chuck Studer, marketing manager for John Deere Precision Farming.

Accurate, on-the-go yield information is provided by a mass-flow sensor located at the top of the clean-grain elevator. Grain flowing off of each paddle strikes and deflects the sensor's wear-resistant impact plate. Movements as small as 1/1,000th of an inch can be detected by the sensor's potentiometer to help ensure consistent, accurate yield readings.

Calibrating the mass-flow sensor consists of two procedures: zero verification and field calibration. In less than two minutes, the operator can complete the zero verification, which resets or zeros the base value of the sensor's potentiometer. Once the zero value of the sensor is verified, the operator performs the field calibration by harvesting a given amount of grain, weighing it, and entering the scaled value into the GreenStar display. One field calibration run for each crop is usually all that is needed.

The moisture senor, located on the side of the clean-grain elevator, features significantly more sensing surface area than competitive designs to allow greater measurement accuracy over a wider moisture range. A rubber paddle controls grain flow through the sensor and maintains a full column of grain in the moisture cell to help ensure measurement accuracy. The design gives the operator the flexibility to adjust the cycle time of the paddle for increased accuracy in low yield or ground-speed conditions.

The moisture sensor doesn't require a calibration procedure. Moisture curves are already formulated for approved crops. The operator simply selects the crop to be harvested and adjusts the moisture offset for that crop, if the readings differ from a referenced moisture reading.

DeKalb Genetics To Purchase Assets From National Starch

DEKALB, Ill. — DeKalb Genetics Corporation said it has entered into a definitive agreement to purchase certain assets of the Custom Farm Seed (CFS) division of National Starch and Chemical Company, including the ongoing commercial CFS seed business.

DeKalb and National Starch have also entered into a research collaboration with the goal of improving the productivity and functionality of certain starch grains. The agreement further calls for DeKalb to receive royalties for seed products developed through the collaboration and used in National Starch's corn processing facilities. Terms of the agreements were not disclosed.

National Starch and Chemical Company, headquartered in Bridgewater, N.J., is a processor of waxy and high-amylose corn, both of which are used to produce value-added starch products. The company's CFS division is a developer, producer, and marketer of seed products, including waxy corn, yellow dent corn, soybeans, and alfalfa. As part of the agreement, DeKalb will purchase the CFS product line as well as a seed conditioning plant in Dwight, Ill.

"This transaction underscores our commitment to developing seed products with quality traits for end-users and processors," said Bruce P. Bickner, DeKalb's chairman and chief executive officer. "CFS is a leader in the waxy corn market, an area of growth for DeKalb. We have expanded our lineup of elite waxy hybrids recently, and the CFS purchase will help us better serve this market segment.

"We further believe that National Starch will be a valuable research partner as we seek to develop hybrids with improved starch functionality," Bickner said. "National Starch is one of the leading consumers of waxy and high amylose corn. It makes good business sense to combine DeKalb's corn breeding resources with National Starch's expertise in corn processing. We believe the collaboration will yield long-term benefits to both companies."

Conservation Farmers Receive Awards

JINNY WILT
Adams Co. Correspondent

MANCHESTER (York Co.) — Two York County farmers know the benefit of soil conservation and were recently honored for their efforts to preserve the soil on the farms that they cultivate by the York County Soil Conservation District.

William Buser of Lower Windsor Township and Leonard Greek of Lower Chanceford Township each note that their farms are located a short distance from the Susquehanna River. And while they know that the soil running off their land into the river ends up in the Chesapeake Bay, they also know it's not good for their crops.

Greek said since becoming involved in conservation farming methods he notices a difference in crop yield and quality. "After 20 years (of farming) I can tell the difference," he said.

Buser, who has been farming since he was 13 years of age and started farming on his own in 1958, said "We always did try conservation. A certain amount of sod strips and when the no-till came into being we went along with no-till or conservation till ... we try to keep the sod as much as we can."

Buser owns 140 acres and rents about 900 acres in a four-to-five mile radius of the home farm, he said.

The 61-year-old farmer, who at one time had a dairy farm, had to switch to crop farming in 1981, the result of a serious accident he had earlier that left him with leg and back injuries. "I just couldn't do it anymore (dairy farming) so we began to increase the size of the acreage by renting ground," he said.

Buser continued, "Conservation is everybody's job, it's just not the farmers. We get blamed for a lot of stuff we shouldn't. And farmers, it's just like everybody else, there are a couple of cultprits who don't care and it makes it bad for all of us."

He also notes that development near some of his farms creates soil run-off problems.

Greek, 38, who always wanted to be a farmer, farms 400 acres — 100 of it his own — between Delta and Airville in York County. A dairy farmer, he has 60 head and the fourth-highest producing milk herd in the county.

He became interested in conservation when he bought a farm in 1984 that was in "pretty rough shape."

"I called the conservation people and they came out and laid out contour strips and I put in two diversions ... after I got mine done I started on some of the rented ground. It's been an ongoing process for several years.

"Then I got into the bay program when that came up. I put spouting on all the buildings and piped all that water down to a diversion. The water is all clean coming off the roof and clean when it leaves the farm too, he said."

Greek said he never knew that awards were given for the conservation measures he takes. "I did it for my own benefit, but it does benefit the environment. I can really see a difference, especially now that I've got 20 years in farming the same land. I can see better yields and less erosion," he said.

He notes that a lot of water is staying on the farm instead of running off.

Greek and his wife, Bonnie Jo, are the parents of four children, and he adds "I think the whole family is conservation-minded. I think they (family) have a good idea of what I'm doing.

Other award winners were: Outstanding conservationist, Larry Adams; Conservation Education Award, Pam Hobbs, a teacher at Delta-Peach Bottom Elementary School; Outstanding Conservation Contractor, DBS Construction Inc.; Outstanding Municipality, East Manchester Township; Clean Water Farm Award, Martin Grey of Sinking Springs Farm; Outstanding Service Award, Tom McCarty, community development water quality gent; Outstanding Cooperating Agency Person, Ellen O'Connor, York County Solid Waste and Refuse Authority; Special Recognition Award, Joseph H. and Laura McCabe; Special Recognition Award for five years as volunteers at the district tree sale, Bill Joyes, Delbert Craley, Fay Craley, Sharon Ryan, John Smith, Wayne Kile and Bob Stover; Goodyear/NACD Merit Ward, Ritchie Flinchbaugh.

Leonard and Bonie Jo Greek were joined by their children, Michael Greek, Stevie Greek, and Frankie Greek when they accepted an outstanding conservation farmer award. Daughter, Stormi Greek was absent from the event.

William and Pat Buser received the outstanding conservation farmer award from the York County Soil Conservation District at a picnic at Musser's Picnic Grounds near Manchester.

MECHANICAL VENTILATION

Fast inlet air velocity is essential for providing air mixing and desirable circulation patterns.

The basics of mechanical ventilation are that fans exhaust air from a building and thus create a static pressure difference between the interior of the building and outside conditions (Figure 1).

Fans provide air exchange by exhausting stale air. The very slight static pressure difference created by the exhaust fan causes air to move into the building through any opening. Air inlets are designed and located in the structure to supply air at a desirable direction, speed, and condition. Properly functioning inlets alleviate problems such as poor air distribution, uneven temperatures, and drafts.

Functions of an air inlet:

1. Provide fresh air throughout the building.
2. Control direction of air flow.
3. Maintain fast inlet air velocity.

Provide Fresh Air Throughout The Building

Since birds are in all parts of the building, then fresh air is needed in all parts. Therefore, it is necessary to have inlets in all locations, or a distribution mechanism to get air to places where there are no inlets.

Two methods commonly used to do this are either by providing inlets around most of the building perimeter, such as along the long sidewalls, or by bringing air in at one point and distributing it throughout the building using a duct (which is uncommon in the poultry industry).

Air moving through high-density poultry facilities picks up moisture, odors, heat, ammonia, and dust which we want to remove from the house. Generally, air near the inlet is fresher than air near the exhaust fans. In addition, air movement near the inlets is more predictable and less prone to dead air zones than near the fans, where the inlet's control over air direction has been dissipated.

Direction Of Air Flow Is Controlled By The Inlet

Inlets usually direct fresh air flow horizontally along a ceiling. Inlet air jets have an affinity for traveling along surfaces. In fact, an inlet air jet that can attach itself to a surface will travel farther across a room than a free air jet issued into free space.

One goal of inlet direction is to cause cold air to mix with the air already in the room before it enters areas where the birds are located. In contrast, during hot summer conditions, it is often desirable to have air moving over birds as a breeze to enhance convective cooling. Inlets can direct air onto the birds. Changing the size and orientation of the inlet opening or the type of inlet allows us to accommodate winter and summer air direction needs

Fast Inlet Air Speed Is Very Important

Fast inlet air speed of 700 to 1 000 feet per minute (fpm) provides for air mixing or entrainment and air distribution, or throw (Figure 2) When an eave slot inlet is adjusted correctly, high-velocity cool air sweeps the ceiling and mixes with warm air in the building

When an inlet is open too wide, a slow-moving stream of cool air sinks to the floor and causes a draft as shown in Figure 3

A draft is cold air moving over animals Due to its heavier density, cold air drops upon entering a warm space Warm air moving over animals usually does not constitute a draft

Inlets must be adjusted to maintain the fast air velocity for rapid air mixing and control of direction The 'control point" on the inlet is where the smallest restriction occurs in the path of air flow At the baffle of the inlet is where we want this to occur The inlet opening size is adjusted each time the fan exhaust rate changes

Since we want to maintain a reasonably constant static pressure in the building while providing high inlet jet velocities, automatic controllers are used to adjust inlet baffle opening size Static pressure should be maintained at a reasonably constant value. about 0 05-inch water with a range of 0 02 to 0 07 inch.

It is important to remember that ventilation is a system The inlets, fans, controls, and a building's structure (such as insulation level, layout, etc) are components which must function together to provide air exchange and distribution Although this set of articles has focused on inlets, they are part of a complete package that provides fresh air exchange to your flock.

Milk Check Laboratories Expands Service

ITHACA, N.Y. — Milk Check Laboratories, a division of Dairy One, is the largest milk analysis laboratory network. Recently expanded, Milk Check Laboratories serves four different market segments; it is the laboraotory for all Northeast DHIA samples; it provides calibration and control samples to other laboratories; it serves as a resource for commercial research and development; and it is responsible for a substantial portion of the Northeastern United States producer payment testing. The lab is equipped with state-of-the-art analysis instruments and averages 300,000 samples monthly. A staff of 24 people average over 10 years of experience and work in two shifts 7 days per week. One would be hard pressed to find another milk analysis lab in the United States with Milk Check's impressive instrumentation, experience, sample turn-a-round and quantity throughput.

The majority of samples are generated through Northeast DHIA and are analyzed for fat and protein. About 85% are analyzed for somatic cell count, and about 50,000 samples per month are analyzed for Milk Urea Nitrogen, one of the areas of strongest growth for the lab. "We are very pleased with the recent renovations," comments Laboratory Manager John Malaney. "As one of the assured services of Dairy One we are in a good, solid position to service all milk shippers in the Northeast and we are equipped to handle the long-term growth of Northeast DHIA."

This year the lab was awarded 100% when inspected for National DHIA quality certification. Every year, this rigorous inspection must be performed for every lab in the United States analyzing DHIA samples.

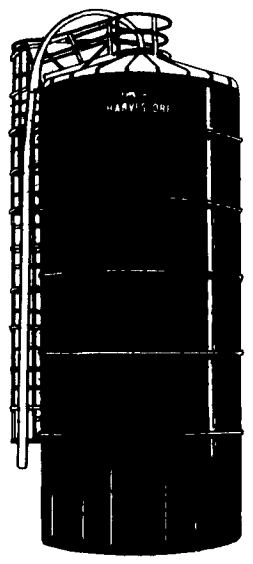
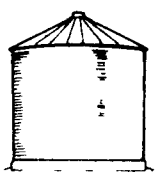
HIGH MOISTURE GRAIN



or DRY GRAIN?



Does it make sense for you to invest in high moisture grain storage? Some factors you should consider are:

- The cost of artificially drying your grain.
- The time it takes to artificially dry your grain.
- Potential loss of crop yield and quality if harvest is delayed and grain is field dried.
- The feed conversion differences between dry and high moisture grain.
- Costs of aeration throughout storage time.

ADD UP ALL THE DIFFERENCES AND YOU'LL SEE HOW OPERATING COSTS REALLY COMPARE.

Peters Family's Affinity To Sheep Evident On The Sidelines, At Ring Side, In Show Ring

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Go to almost any Lancaster County sheep show and you'll find Becky Peters knitting contentedly on the sidelines, her husband Raymond hustling lambs back and forth between pens and ringside, while son Radell, smiling broadly, is in the show ring with either a Dorset or Jacob sheep.

The old adage that 4-H isn't just for kids is exemplified by families such as the Peters. The parents enthusiastically support Radell by not only lending a helping hand with 4-H projects but also assisting as leaders for the 4-H Woolies Club.

"It's not a sacrifice," Ray said of parental involvement. "I enjoy the shows as much as Radell."

While winning a champion trophy is, of course, a goal, it is not the main pursuit of the Peters' family.

Radell recalls that some of the best times he ever had at a shows were times when his sheep didn't place higher than second place.

"It's fun to win, but it's more fun just being there and helping other members," said 14-year-old Radell.

"The whole 4-H program has the best bunch of kids you can find," Ray said.

Although Radell shows Dorsets, he is probably best known in sheep circles for showing the Jacob's breed.

Those eye-catching black and white lambs stand out in marked contrast to the mostly white breeds at shows.

The Peters got their start in showing the Jacob breed a few years ago. That was when Ray and Becky celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary. Church friends who were aware of the the couple's fascination with the breed surprised them by purchasing a pair and presenting the ewe adorned with a veil and a Hershey kiss necklace while her mate sported a top hat.

"It's an old breed that dates back to biblical times," Ray said. The spotted lambs are referred to in Genesis when Jacob outmaneuvers his father-in-law's trickery.

"I like them because they don't eat much," Ray said. His idea of the greatest stress reliever is to lean against a wooden fence and watch the sheep graze contentedly.

The Jacob breed is also valued for its bountiful wool. The Peters protect the wool by keeping the Jacobs' sheep covered with blankets. After the wool is sheared, the fleece is hand spun by a friend. The black and white fleece produces a lovely deep gray yarn, which Becky knits into sweaters, coasters, and other projects.

To give her knitted fashions a unique fashion touch, buttons made from sheep horns are used. For each button, Radell saws off about a quarter-inch of the horn and drills holes in the center to attach like buttons. The finished buttons have radiating circles of color and are not completely round, giving them an artsy appearance.

Last year in leadline competition, Radell wore one of the sweaters his mother knitted from a sheep. Leadline competition is judged on the lamb being lead around the show ring, the leadperson's control of the lamb, and the outfit that showcases wool's versatility and beauty. Usually Radell is the only male or one of few competing among the mostly female contestants.

"The person in charge talked a few of us guys into competing. At the last minute, the other guys dropped out because it was so hot," Radell said of a recent competition at the county 4-H roundup level.

Despite sweltering temperatures and a hefty nosebleed prior to entering the showring, Radell stuck to his promise and competed by wearing wool slacks and a wool vest and bowtie that his mother had made for the event.

At the Elizabethtown Fair livestock sale held recently, Radell was pleasantly surprised to see his lamb sell for $320 to Fox's Market. The market owners purchased the lamb in appreciation of Radell's continual help with lamb promotions.

With the prize money from the various sales, Radell covers sheep expenses and buys lambs for the following year. He also donates a percentage of it to mission or benefit projects. This year, he is leaning toward using the money to go on a short-term mission trip to Taiwan.

Radell is also a member of the 4-H meat judging team. This summer, he placed first in the state for junior meats judging at Penn State.

No doubt Radell has picked up some expertise in meat from helping his father who moonlights at a butcher shop.

Ray said that he grew up helping with butchering at home and continues to do the butchering for the family's meat supply. It seems only natural to help with butchering at the shop.

Radell is in eighth grade at Mt. Calvary Christian School, where he participates in baseball and basketball.

The Peters family follows a rule: no television during the week. This frees up time for Radell to complete his homework, feed the sheep, and participate in sports and in church activities.

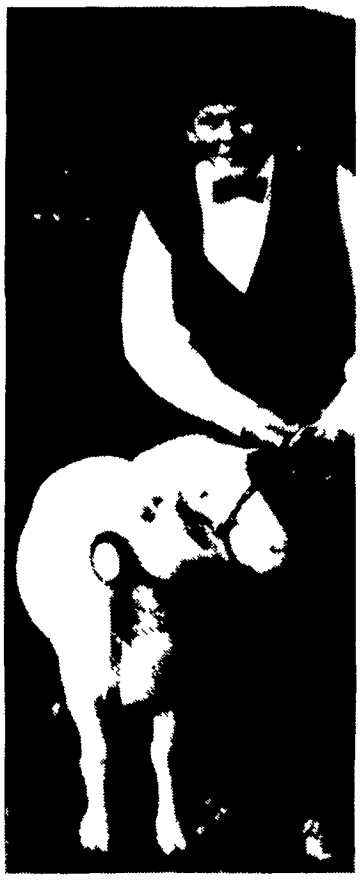
The Peters family has another project that they participate in together. That is HIS (Hands In Motion, Hearts In Ministry) Puppeteers. The puppet team with its 14 members provide programs at other churches, schools, camps, and even at fairs.

Raymond grew up on a Manheim farm, worked in New York, married, and continued working in New York for six more years before returning to the area. After installing poultry equipment for 10 years, he took a job as poultry manager of a 190,000-layer flock.

Becky works night as charge nurse at a nearby retirement home. Her schedule enables her to attend both daytime and evening sheep shows.

The couple have two married sons, Ryan and Raphael, and one grandson.

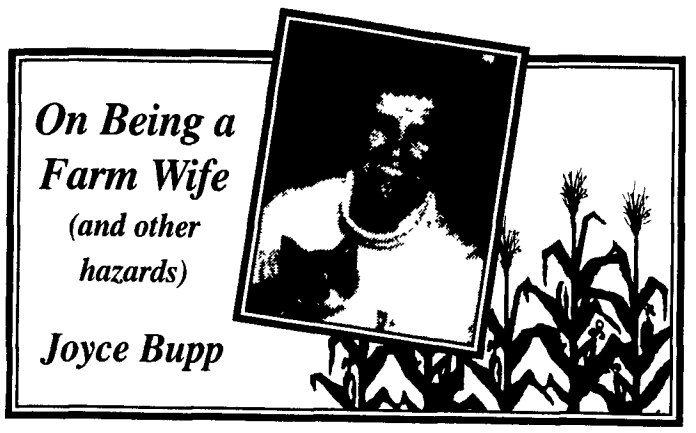
The old adage that 4-H isn't just for kids is exemplified by the Peters family. Parents Raymond and Becky enthusiastically support Radell not only by lending a helping hand with 4-H projects but also Ray assists as a leader for the 4-H Woolies Club. "It's not a sacrifice," Ray said of parental involvement. "I enjoy the shows as much as Radell."



Despite sweltering temperatures and a hefty nosebleed prior to entering the showring, Radell stuck to his promise and competed in leadline competition at the 4-H Roundup held recently.

Radell watches his mother knit another sweater from the yarn spun from the family's Jacob sheep. To give the knitted fashions a unique fashion touch, Radell cuts sheep horns to form the artsy buttons.

HOMESTEAD NOTES



Help, I'm surrounded!

They're on the right of me. They're on the left of me. I clean up one and another is right there to take its place.

Pots and kettles. Colanders and canning jars. Knives and brushes. Lids and racks. Fruit pectin, sugar, salt, vinegar.

Suddenly all the garden stuff we've been so eagerly anticipating has ripened. All at once.

Why does it always have to do that? So what we can't eat or share, I like to squirrel away for the winter.

Taking the production lead is the tomato patch. Just when it was beginning to seem it would never happen, the three-dozen plants covered themselves with oodles of juicy, red, ripe orbs of "delusciousness". Yeah, that's a made up word, but it seemed to fit.

(Even the groundhogs haven't been able to keep ahead of the ripening tomato harvest. And thanks to our readers who contacted me with suggestions on how to outsmart our garden-raiding rodents.)

There are tomatoes on the front porch. Tomatoes on the basement porch. Tomatoes on the kitchen counter. Tomatoes turn up at most every meal, as salads, in sandwiches, part of main dishes, or even as a snack, with a little Italian dressing and a dusting of garlic powder. Neither of us complains. We love them. So we make gluttons of ourselves and savor their flavor several times every day while they're in season.

Still, we can't outeat the bucketfuls that are ripe and so out come the canning supplies. Tomatoes are one of my favorite canning foods, because they're quick and easy to "put up." Sauce takes a bit longer, 'til you strain out the seeds and skin and cook to a thicker consistency, but come January, it's like a stash of buried treasure on the storage shelves.

Canning supplies are an awkward lot, bulky pieces of equipment that overflow the sink and bully everything else off the counter when they take center stage. With one canner tied up on the stove, another in the sink piled full of waiting vegetables or fruits, and food en route to processing filling every large bowl in the house, sometimes it's necessary to even lug out a large roasting pan or two to handle the temporary overflow.

And, then all those gooey containers have to be scrubbed of the sticky residue that accompanies major canning operations. Burnt-on drips soaked off the stove. Splatters scrubbed from the surrounding walls and appliances and floor. Nevertheless, home canning is a bit like having a baby — the results are so rewarding that you forget the temporary inconvenience.

Other welcome produce parades into the kitchen to keep us busy during lulls in the tomato deluge.

Our row of Roma string beans just sat there until the smidgeon of late July rain got the plants' attention. Perhaps thanks to the cool nights, so far they've resisted the usual bean beetles and are happily yielding a picking a week. More than we can eat and plenty left to blanche for freezing. We'll enjoy them snuggled with ham and potatoes in the crockpot next winter.

Though much of the field corn is a disaster, our sweet corn patch pluckily held its own and we've buttered and munched dozens of roasting ears. There's corn in the freezer, corn soup in the refrigerator, and we'll keep scouring the patch for those tasty, late-ripening nubbins of ears that trail along at the end. The aged and tough remains that linger will be chopped with the field corn and the cows will finish it off. And the "girls" will be glad for those few extra bites of silage this lean year of feedstuffs.

Topping off our wonderful garden goodies is an abundance of home-grown dessert: red and yellow watermelons, honeydews and cantaloupes. They thrived on the dry warmth of the summer, so long as I carried jugs of water to drip onto their roots at regular intervals. Those jugs of water are now returning to the house enclosed in tasty, sweet melon flesh.

All in all, a garden is a wonderful return on investment.

And gives you something to stash away for a rainy — or snowy day.

Make Your Day

WILLIAMSPORT (Lycoming Co.) — "Make Your Day" is the theme this year for the Lycoming County Extension's fall Family Living Day. Held at the Grace United Methodist Church, the meeting will begin Sept. 30, 9:00 a.m.

A catered lunch and mistress of ceremonies Wilma Smith will be there with her story telling and bell ringing.

The Make-It-Take-It craft is a basket woven from paper grocery bags, which can be made in different stiles and sizes and filled with a variety of objects. Cost is $1 to participate in the craft making, which is to be paide on the day of the program, not with the registration.

To register for the Family Living Day, send $6.50 to Fall Family Living Day/Doris Sargent, Lycoming Co. Extension Office, Rm. 409, Courthouse, 48 W. Third St., Williamsport, PA 17701.

Sarah Roberts Reigns As Maryland Farm Queen

KAREN BUTLER
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, Md. — Sarah Alison Roberts of Charles County reigns as the 1997 Maryland farm queen. She was selected from 22 contestants. Judges were Alex Hamilton, public affairs director for the Virginia Farm Bureau; Shelley Knight, information specialist for the West Virginia farm bureau; and Joel Rotz, director of local affairs for the Pennsylvania farm bureau. The pageant was held at Cow Palace at the fairgrounds in conjunction with the Maryland State Fair.

Other farm royalty crowned at the pageant were first runner-up Rebecca Miller, Baltimore county; second runner-up Amanda Shahan, Harford County; third runner-up Kelly Beckley, Washington County; and fourth runner-up Laura Johnson, Howard County.

"I'm very excited to be the state farm queen, and I hope that I will live up to the farm community's expectations," said Sarah, the 16-year-old daughter of Harold and Shirley Roberts of Bryantown.

The Roberts farm a 120-acre farm belonging to Sarah's grandfather William Roberts. They raise tobacco, hay, field corn, and Black Angus cattle. Sarah has an 11-year-old sister, Katie. On the farm, Sarah drives the tractors, helps with the hay and corn, and spears, cuts, hangs, and strips tobacco.

In addition to her new responsibilities as farm queen at the state fair this year, Sarah is keeping busy with her registered Suffolk sheep. An eight-year member of the farmer's fortune 4-H club, she owns and manages a flock of 25 Suffolks, and shows them at the county and state levels. Last year at a local fair she had the supreme champion ewe and supreme champion ram. She also raises Angus heifers and broiler chickens.

When not busy on the farm Sarah has been active in promoting beef. She serves as the National Beef Ambassador for Maryland, a job that took her to San Antonio recently. She is a member of the Charles County livestock judging team, the Southern Maryland and Charles County livestock committees, the National Suffolk Association, and the National Junior Angus Association.

The La Plata high school senior is a class delegate and member of the Charles County association of student councils. She is secretary of the National Honor Society and a member of the envirothon, speech, and debate teams.

Nutrition Tips For Food Shopping

Most food shopping tips are designed to help you save money at the supermarket; today's tips are aimed at helping you get more nutritious food for your dollar. Using the Food Guide Pyramid, let's tour your local food stores.

Starting at the base of the pyramid with the grain group, let's explore different breads. Nutrition experts recommend we get more fiber by using whole grain products such as bread. Purchasing whole grain breads is confusing since not all brown bread is made from whole grains. You have to read the ingredients label to determine the grain content and often brown breads will list "enriched wheat flour" or "unbleached flour" or "bromated flour"; all of the above are names for regular white flour. Whole wheat flour or whole grain flour will be listed as the first ingredient on whole wheat bread. You should also check the fiber content on the label. Whole wheat bread usually provides two grams of fiber per serving. Some white breads increase their fiber content by adding wheat bran or other fibrous materials. Serving sizes may vary so check the serving size amount listed on the label. Some "lite" breads list the serving size as three slices and the fiber content as 1.5 grams and this translates to .5 grams per slice.

Next in the grain group are cereals, and the choices are numerous. Choose the enriched or whole grain cereals for the most nutrition. Parents often ask about sugared cereals, these generally cost more than the nonsugared variety. Research shows that children eating sugared cereals and adding their own sugar use more sugar than is included in the sweetened variety. A trick for parents is to purchase both the sugared and nonsugared varieties of a cereal and mix them in a container. This way your child will have a controlled amount of sugar that is less than the sweetened variety. The size you buy should be determined by the amount your family will use in a timely fashion. (Buying the economy size just because it costs less per ounce only saves you money if you can use all of the cereal.) Another tip about cereal, the last serving is frequently left as nobody wants the crumbs on the bottom. You can use these small amounts of cereal to mix with popcorn and other small snack foods to make snack bags for after school treats.

Fruits and vegetables comprise the next level of the food pyramid. The most nutritious products may not be in the fresh produce department. Fresh fruits and vegetables start to lose nutrients as soon as they are harvested. If your supermarket doesn't have a fast turnover in the fresh produce department, the frozen fruits and vegetables will be more nutritious. Also, if you keep fresh produce for a week to 10 days after purchasing it, it would be more nutritious to purchase the frozen variety. To have really nutritious fruits and vegetables; you can raise your own so you can pick and eat in the same day. Another alternative is to pick produce at a "pick your own farm" or buy from a farmer's market or roadside stand that sells only today's harvest.

The third level of the food pyramid is composed of the Milk and Meat groups. Dairy products contribute lots of nutrients to our diets but they also contribute to our daily fat allowance. Choosing skimmed or 1% milk will lower the fat content while retaining the vitamins and calcium levels. Yogurts are another good choice in this group. The plain, nonfat or low-fat are the best choices. Yogurts with fruit and other add-ins limit the calcium content and increase the sugar. It would be better to purchase plain yogurt and add your fruit combinations. Cheeses are generally high fat choices but some of the newer low fat choices taste like the higher fat versions. Read the level on cheeses to determine the fat content and the serving size listed for each cheese.

Meats are the most expensive item on food shopping lists so plan to buy only what you will use or buy on special and freeze for later meals. If you buy on special be sure to keep a running inventory of what is in your freezer so you can use it within three to six months. (County Cooperative Extension offices have storage guidelines for meats and poultry that you can request.) The number of servings per pound of meat varies with the amount of bone, skin and fat included in the package. Ribs and whole chickens and turkeys have a higher amount of fat and bone and will yield about two servings per pound while skinless, boneless chicken breasts will yield four servings per pound. You should figure the cost per serving when buying meats rather than the cost per pound. Ground meat theoretically should yield four servings per pound buy my experience showed that ground beef only yielded three servings with a serving of fat while ground chuck and ground round supplies four servings per pound.

Grocery stores are designed to sell food and to entice you to spend more money than you planned. Your job is to provide nutritious meals and snacks while staying within your food budget. These suggestions should help you win the Nutrition Grocery Game.

Lunch Is In The Bag

Brown bagging your lunch can be a delicious way to eat healthier and save money. To make a truly memorable sandwich, you have to use the very best ingredients.

With low fat cold cuts, fat-free mayonnaise, lettuce and tomato, a sandwich amounts to less than 200 calories, and provides protein, grain, and vegetable carbohydrates. Serve it with an apple, orange or banana for an easy low-fat lunch.

Sandwiches can also be fun. to make lunch a little more interesting, try these exciting sandwich ideas from Carl Buddig and Company, maker of low-fat quality cold cuts:

• Want to encourage your children to eat their sandwiches? Why not name the "Sandwich of the Day."

For a Batman and Robin, stuff a pita bread with ham and turkey, add chopped apples, mix with low-fat mayo and pine nuts.

For a Pilgrim's Po Boy, spread cream cheese and jellied cranberry sauce on a hoagie bun, then top with sliced turkey.

Surprise your child with an April Fool's. Roll up ham and turkey slices (2 or 4 of each), serve on a hot dog bun with ketchup, mustard, and relish.

For a Ham 'n Goosebumps, serve ham on rye with a mustard-mayo combination. On the side, serve red gelatin with grapes.

• Why should kids have all the fun? Grown-ups also enjoy special sandwiches for special events.

For Columbus Day, sail a Pinta Pita—golden brown pita pockets stuffed with turkey, chopped lettuce, and tomato pieces right into their lunch bags.

On Halloween, the gang could go for a Ghostbuster, french bread or a soft roll loaded with sliced turkey and melted mozzarella cheese.

For Christmas time, the Santa Submarine features Ho Ho Ham, with red, ripe tomato slices with a leafy green lettuce served on a soft roll.

For the Fourth of July, why not serve Texas Barbecue Beef—sliced beef piled on a soft bun. Serve open faced with tangy barbecue sauce.

Here are some lunch suggestions from Betty Light.

• Frozen bread: Using frozen bread ensures the sandwich tastes fresh and keeps filling fresh until lunch time.

• Freeze juice: Fill juice in container ½ -inch from top and stick in freezer the night befored. Helps keep lunch cool and assures cold drink for lunch.

• Keep sandwiches from getting soggy: Butter bread from crust to crust before spreading filling on bread.

When using lettuce, wrap it separate and then place it on the sandwich when ready to eat.

Make your sandwiches with spread filling the night before and place in coldest part of refrigerator.

• Ham: have deli slice ham very thin; freeze ham in single portions. Spread bread, place in plastic wrap and place that in the lunch with the frozen ham on the side so it can be put together before eating.

Vegetables: Wrap lettuce, celery, carrots or any veggie in a moist paper towel before placing in plastic bag. Keeps veggies moist and use towel to wipe hands at the end of lunch.

• Frozen cake: Wrap each serving in plastic wrap and stick in freezer. At lunchtime, the cake will be ready-to-eat and won't be soggy from melted frosting soaking into cake.

• Use insulated lunch bags.

Don't be chicken, enter the Delmarva Chicken Cooking Contest.

The contest is open to residents of 12 eastern states and the District of Columbia. Twenty finalists will be chosen by recipe judging to receive an expense-paid weekend to the cook-off finals set for June 12-14, 1998 on the scenic Delmarva Peninsula.

First prize is a Caribbean dream vacation with $1,000 in spending money and gifts from Cutco Cutlery, McCormick and Company, and Mid-Atlantic Propane Gas Association. Second- and third-place winners will receive $2,500 in cash and gifts from Cutco and McCormick companies. Special awards will be given to the best quick and easy and best dark meat chicken recipe.

Recipe entries must be original and previously unpublished. Broiler-fryer chicken, whole or any combination of parts, is the only required ingredient. Recipes should make four to eight servings. Judging will be based on appeal, ease of preparation, taste, and appearance.

Deadline for entering is Feb. 1, 1998.

Here is the 1996 winning recipe from Julie Fox, Annapolis, Md.

CHICKEN WITH MUSHROOMS AND FRESH SAGE CREAM

4 broiler-fryer chicken breast halves, boned, skinned
2 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
3 teaspoons olive oil
2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ cups sliced crimini mushrooms or white button mushrooms
¾ cup chopped green onion
½ cup dry white wine
8-ounces low-fat cream cheese, cubed
½ cup grated parmesan cheese
¼ cup low-fat milk
2 tablespoons chopped fresh sage
4 cups hot cooked linguine
Parmesan cheese
Fresh sage

On hard surface with meat mallet or similar flattening utensil, pound chicken to ¼ -inch thickness. In a shallow dish, mix together flour, salt, and pepper. Add chicken, one piece at a time, turning to coat on all sides. In large non-stick frypan, place oil and heat to medium-high temperature. Add chicken and cook, turning, about 8 minutes or until chicken is brown and fork tender. Arrange chicken on platter; cover loosely and keep warm. To drippings in frypan, add garlic, mushrooms, green onion, and wine.

Cook, covered, over medium-low heat 3 mintues or until vegetables are tender. Add cream cheese, parmesan cheese, milk, and sage; stir constantly until cheeses melt and sauce is smooth. Place linguine on four serving plates; arrange chicken on linguine. Spoon mushrooms and sage cream over chicken. Pass additional parmesan cheese and garnish with fresh sage. Makes 4 servings.

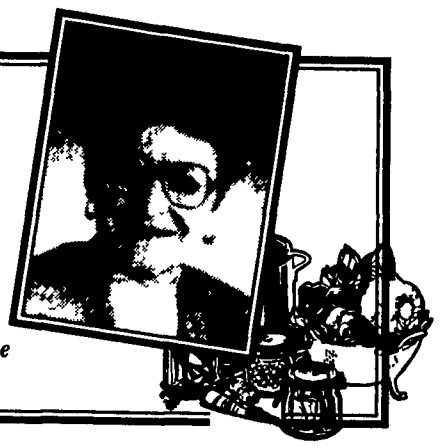
Consuming Thoughts

by

Fay Strickler

Penn State Extension Home Economist For Berks Co.



September is a great month to enjoy the vast array of tantalizing, crunchy, colorful vegetables available at roadside stands, farmers markets and even your own home garden.

Vegetables come in a variety of flavors, are often inexpensive, and are packed with nutrition. Even so, their popularity scores remain low among many Americans.

If vegetables are not among your favorite foods, maybe you're eating the same dull round of boiled carrots, corn, or green beans every week. Give vegetables a boost in your diet by cooking them with style. It won't require a lot of skill or time, and you will enjoy eating these good-for-you foods. Begin your next style of vegetable cookery by discovering the choices from asparagus to zucchini. Vegetable cookery can be an adventure if you try a different vegetable each day. When did you last taste kohlrabi, salsify, or parsnips? Have you every prepared an artichoke or zucchini?

Many vegetables lose flavor with children and adults because they are cooked too long in too much water. Boiling will produce tasty vegetables if a small amount of water is used and the vegetables are cooked only until they are tender-crisp.

Steaming requires a little more time than boiling, but it can be a healthy and tasty change. Vegetables are held above boiling water in a perforated basket so that color, flavor, and nutrients are retained.

You've probably boiled cabbage, but have you ever stir-fired it? In stir-frying, vegetables are thinly sliced and quickly tossed in a small amount of hot oil in a heavy skillet or wok. When preparing a vegetable mixture, begin with longer cooking vegetables like broccoli and end with ones requiring less time like mushrooms. With a little stir-frying practice, you can serve vegetables that are colorful, crisp, flavorful, and nutritious.

Spices and herbs can enhance the natural flavors of vegetables. Seasoning vegetables requires willingness to experiment, but it can be as simple as adding a dash of lemon juice or pinch of dill.

Crush basil over thick tomato slices ready for broiling. Sprinkle dill on cucumbers, tarragon on cauliflower, or chopped chives on broccoli. Allspice, a bay leaf, or caraway seed taste great with cabbage.

Two vegetables often taste better together than either one alone, and sometimes three or more taste better than two. A quick and easy combination is stir-fried cabbage, carrots, and onion. Try combining cauliflower with mushrooms, or tiny carrot strips and lima beans. Ripe red tomatoes are excellent stuffed with cabbage slaw.

Fruit can be a healthy partner for vegetables in salads and side dishes. Orange sections added to shredded cabbage give added eye appeal as well as a vitamin C boost. Diced pineapple, crisp apples, or grapes are other coleslaw complements. Red cabbage and apples are a sweet-sour sensation when cooked until tender-crisp with a dash of vinegar and sugar.

Vegetables can be tasty combined with low-fat sauces and protein foods to make balanced one-dish meals. Brussels sprouts mixed with cheese, almonds, and water chestnuts in mushroom sauce makes a tasty casserole. Vegetables will become family favorites when teamed with pasta in dishes like spinach lasagna. When looking for easy, one-dish meals, don't forget about the variety of homemade soups. A bowl of cabbage soup served with whole wheat bread makes a light but filling meal.

Vegetables should be enjoyed for their flavor, eye appeal, and versatility. Their nutritional value is really an added bonus.

Vitamin A abounds in deep green vegetables like spinach and collard greens and in dark yellow vegetables like carrots, sweet potatoes, and winter squash. Broccoli, cauliflower, and cabbage offer vitamin C, but to preserve this nutrient, cook these vegetables quickly in a minimal amount of water. Fiber is another health benefit in vegetables. Fiber adds bulk to the diet and serves as "nature's toothbrush" for gums and teeth. Because vegetables contain different amounts cellulose and hemicellulose, they differ in dietary fiber value. Raw vegetables like cabbage, broccoli, and cauliflower make great snacks and can give your diet fiber boost.

Vegetables are naturally low in calories. Served with herbs and spices instead of butter or high-calorie sauces, they can be enjoyed as low-calorie foods. Calorie control is a losing battle for one out of three Americans, so eating more vegetables can be a healthy practice.

QUESTION — Betty Jakum, Litttlestown, writes that she has successfully made sauerkraut for more than 15 years. However, this year, the cabbage she shredded and salted in a crock stopped fermenting after only one week. The mixture has not gone bad, but it has a different consistency and only a hint of the yellow color of sauerkraut and not much taste. Does anyone know what she had done wrong? She used pickling salt and placed a weighted plastic bag on top of the mixture. Perhaps some of the water in the bag leaked out, she drained off the excess water, but it hasn't helped. Any suggestions on how to save this batch?

QUESTION — Carl Schintzel, Rockaway, N.J., remembers his mother used to make seasoned rice with cubed pieces of veal in it, which cooked all day on a wood or coal range. He doesn't remember the name or any other ingredients it might have contained, but the mixture was made in a deep gray graniteware lidded pot.

QUESTION — Michele Powlison, Millerton, writes that she milks goats and would like some recipes for goat cheese. She would also like to know where to purchase rennet tablets.

QUESTION — A reader would like a recipe for chocolate zucchini bars, which was made with chocolate chips.

QUESTION — Mary Dengler, Middletown, Ohio, would like a recipe for 10-grain bread that tastes similar to that made by Roscoe Village Bakery in Coshocton, Ohio.

QUESTION — A reader from Stewartstown would like a recipe for a brownie made from a German chocolate cake mix, cream cheese, and miniature chocolate chips.

QUESTION — Louise Graybeal, Renick, W.V. would like to know where to buy vegetable rennet to make cheese. She writes: When a recipe calls for a rennet tablet, can liquid rennet be used, and how much?

For feta cheese, can she substitute cow's milk instead of goat's?

For yogurt, when she buys acidophilus cultures can she substitute 2 tablespoons homemade yogurt for the next batch?

QUESTION — Cel Brown of West Chester wants the recipe for a bread mix like the ones in the store called Daily Bread Company's. These mixes can be made ahead of time.

ANSWER — Betty Kellicutt, Auburn, had been searching for years for a good dark rye bread recipe that tastes like bread they had in Germany. The bread was very crusty outside with a heavy soft inside. Thanks to Michele Powlison, Millerton, for sending one that is sourdough based, and to Debbie Burkholder, Denver, for sending two other recipes. Debbie writes that it may be difficult to achieve the same crusty outside which bakers are able to do by using forced steam. Try to attain a crusty outside by covering the dough with a damp cloth while it is rising (making sure the cloth is over the dough; not touching the dough) and by putting a pan of boiling water in the oven with the bread while it is baking.

Russian Black Bread

4 cups unsifted rye flour
3 cups unsifted white flour
1 teaspoon sugar
2 teaspoons salt
3 cups whole bran cereal
2 tablespoons caraway seed, crushed
2 teaspoons instant coffee
2 teaspoons onion powder
½ teaspoon fennel seed, crushed
2 tablespoons powdered active dry yeast
2½ cups water
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup dark molasses
1-ounce unsweetened chocolate
¼ cup margarine
1 teaspoon cornstarch
½ cup cold water

Combine rye and wheat flours. In a large bowl, mix 2⅓ cups flour mixture, sugar, salt, cereal, caraway seed, instant coffee, onion powder, fennel seed, and undissolved yeast.

Combine 2½ cups water, vinegar, molasses, chocolate, and margarine in a saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquids are warm. (Margarine and chocolate do not need to melt). Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat 2 mintues at medium speed. Add ½ cup flour mixture or enough flour mixture to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed 2 minutes. Stir in enough additional flour mixture to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board. Cover dough with bowl and let rest 15 mintues. Knead until smooth and elastic, about 10-15 minutes (dough may be sticky). Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough in half. Shape each half into a ball, about 5 inches in diameter. Place each ball in the center of a greased 8-inch round cake pan. Cover; let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about one hour.

Bake in 350 degree oven about 45 to 50 minutes or until done.

Meanwhile, combine cornstarch, ½ cup cold water. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly for one minute. As soon as bread is baked, brush cornstarch mixture over tops of loaves. Return bread to oven and bake 2 to 3 minutes or until glaze is set. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks.

Finnish Farmers Sourdough Rye Bread

1 package active dry yeast
1½ teaspoons sugar
1 cup warm water
1½ teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons caraway seeds (optional)
¾ cup sourdough starter*
1½ cups medium rye flour
2 to 2½ cups all-purpose flour

In a large bowl, combine yeast, sugar, and warm water. Let stand 10 minutes. With mixer on low speed, stir in salt, oil, caraway seeds, and sourdough starter. Beat in ½ cup each of rye flour and all-purpose flour. Add 1 cup rye flour and beat well. Gradually stir in all but one cup of all-purpose flour.

Turn dough out on a floured surface and knead 10 minutes. Add remaining flour as needed to make a stiff dough. Grease a large bowl, place dough in bowl and allow to rise in a warm place. Punch dough down and knead until smooth.

Place in a large greased loaf pan and allow to rise again, about 45 minutes. Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Bake about 35 to 40 minutes or until golden brown and hollow when tapped. Remove and cool on wire rack.

Sourdough starter

The starter is best if you use it once a week. If you do not use it for two or three weeks, discard half and replenish.

2 cups flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 package yeast
2 cups warm water

In a 4 to 6 cup plastic pitcher or non-metallic bowl, combine all ingredients. Beat with a wooden or plastic spoon until well blended. Cover with a cloth. Set in a warm place free from drafts and let ferment 2 to 3 days. Stir mixture several times a day. To use, remove starter as needed for recipe. Refrigerate remaining starter in a plastic container with a lid that has an air vent or hole in it. After using some starter, replenish by stirring in equal amounts of water and all-purpose flour (such as ½ cup water and ½ cup flour). Let starter stand at room temperature until full of bubbles. Refrigerate. If a clear liquid forms on top, stir back into starter. Makes 3 to 4 cups starter.

Towering, Gentle Walking Horse Giants Enthrall Allentown Fairgoers

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — They have prize-winning names: Diamond Chips T and Nugget Strike Gold.

The Tennessee Walking horses, that is.

A few of them galloped around the show ring, and kids could walk up to the horses under the judging tent at Allentown Fair last week and pet them.

That's what kids like Lorissa Lazarus, 7, did. To Lorissa, and to Brielle Twitty, Maria Amador, Brittany Snyder, and even the rider, Angela Schlott, the horses were giant, gentle creatures who could neigh and even grab a bite to eat from your hand.

Children of all ages can see more of the giant, gentle horses and have a lot of other fun, too, at the North American Plantation Classic. The Classic is scheduled the weekend of Sept. 13-14 at the Quentin Riding Club in Quentin, near Lebanon.

The horses at Allentown Fair will join many others across the country at the Classic, which will have more than 80 classes and feature more than $1,800 in prize money, plus coolers and championship trophies.

For kids, some events include a stickhorse class. Children can bring along a stickhorse of any style and "pretend they're riding just like the competitors in the show," said Jeannie H. McGuire, horse instructor and trainer from Pottsville.

McGuire is president of the Pennsylvania Pleasure Walking Horse Association, which is presenting the Classic.

The stickhorse competition will be held on the Saturday of the show, McGuire noted. Ribbons will be awarded in the stickhorse class.

The competition will over all sorts of pleasure walking horse types of riding, including Western and English classes.

There will also be an Antebellum show, breed history, ladies riding side-saddle in costume, and other events. There will be other kids' games, lots of vendors, artwork, clothing, and plenty of food.

Quentin is located about three miles south of Lebanon on Rt. 72. For more information about the Classic, contact Jeannie McGuire at (717) 385-2867.

Lorissa Lazarus, 7, daughter of Rhonda and Les Lazarus, enjoys the Tennessee Walking Horse demonstration at Allentown.

Plastic clothes?
When you re out shopping for school clothes, pay close attention to the tags on those oh so popular polyester duds They could be made from 2 liter soda pop bottles
It s not as far fetched as you might think Polyester is a special kind of plastic that has all sorts of uses Soda bottles are made from the highest grade of polyester called polyethylene teraphthalate That s tough to say, so people just call it PET for short
To recycle plastic bottles manufacturers first remove the caps labels and bases and sort the plastic by color Then they chop the bottles into little pieces wash them and dry them The plastic pieces are heated purified (that s a scientist way of saying they re made REALLY clean) and extruded into pellets To extrude the melted plastic they spin the stuff around so fast that the liquid pushes out through tiny holes in the sides of container
The purified polyester is extruded one more time, into fine fibers that, when they cool and solidify, are used to spin into thread The thread s then woven into fabric
People have been commercially recycling plastic pop bottles for about five years They ve found ways to incorporate the special polyester into material used for jeans t shirts, outdoor clothes, backpacks and thermal underwear
And the best part of soda pop clothes? It fits the three R s of helping the environment — reduce the amount of packaging by buying big bottles, recycle the plastic and reuse it in your clothes!

Pennsylvania Team Tops Polled Hereford Competition

FORT WORTH, Tex. — Pennsylvania Polled Hereford Junior Association members were the high-scoring team and won the overall sweeptstakes for the fourth year in a row during the 24th Polled Hereford Junior National Show and Forum held in Ft. Worth, Texas from July 25-30. The Pennsylvania team, consisting of 11 young Polled Hereford breeders from across the Commonwealth, received points for participating in and winning various contests in stiff competition with hundreds of other junior members from 31 states.

In an event called team marketing, the Pennsylvania junior team won first place. In this contest, team members must convince a panel of judges to buy a heifer they are offering to "sell" during a six-minute oral presentation. The animal does not actually get sold, but the team presents information on the calf to the judges and responds to their questions. Jessica and Elizabeth Dye, Amity, Washington Co., and Emilie Miller, Womelsdorf, Berks Co., made up the winning team. This was the first time the three girls competed in this contest.

In the photo contest, Ben Cross of Kennerdell, Venango Co., placed first in the senior division with a color photograph of a Polled Hereford butt in the winter woods. In the promotional poster contest with a theme of "Showdown in Cowtown," Emilie Miller won first place in the junior age group. Emilie also placed seventh in the nation in the computer cow/calf game winning a certificate and semen to use to breed her cattle. Matt Cross, also of Kennerdell, Venango Co., placed eighth in the nation in this contest.

The Pennsylvania Juniors also competed with honors in the show arena. Curt Stockdale of Dayton, Armstrong Co., exhibited the grand champion cow/calf pain and the grand champion bull.

Matt Cross placed in his showmanship class. A total of 22 Polled Herefords were exhibited by the Pennsylvania juniors.

After winning the national championship for motorcycle service technology, Joshua Kurtz, 17, is welcomed home to the family farm in Fleetwood with this sign.

Farm Youth Wins National Award In Cycle Maintenance

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

FLEETWOOD (Berks Co.) — Fixing things on the family farm and God played a major role in helping Joshua Kurtz attain a national championship in motorcycle service technology competition.

The 17-year-old said that God helped him to remain calm under pressure and remember all he had learned when he participated in a three-day competition held in Kansas City, Missouri recently. As a junior at Fleetwood High School and the Berks Career and Technology Center, Joshua clinched championships at regional and state levels through the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America (VICA) before qualifying for national competition.

VICA ia the national organization for students in trade, industrial, technical, and health occupations education. The Skills USA Championships are held annually to recognize the achievements of vocational students and to encourage them to strive for excellence and pride. Approximately 3,500 outstanding vocational students participated in national competition in 57 different trade, technical, and leadership fields.

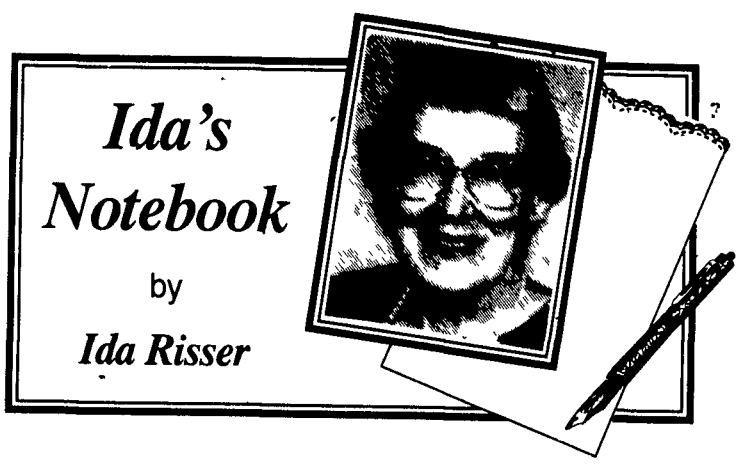
Joshua and other contestants in the motorcycle servicing competition needed to compete against the clock while performing numerous tasks representative of those encountered in a dealership's service department. Participants were judged on clean and organized work habits, correct use of reference materials, ability to follow directions, good technical skills including using service and parts manuals/microfiche, serving brake, chassis/suspension, fuel, drive, electrical, and engine systems, and using electrical testing and precision measuring tools.

Joshua said that his mechanical skills were sparked by helping his dad repair equipment on the family's dairy farm. He is the son of Floyd and Beth Kurtz and has three younger sisters.

Among many sports-related prizes, Joshua received several scholarships offers to such places as the Motorcycle Mechanics Institute in Phoenix, Ariz. and to the Ohio Diesel Technical College. He is also eligible for an intership with American Honda Motor Co.

In the meantime, Joshua has another year of high school to complete. He is now attending Lancaster Mennonite High School, Lancaster, and working part time in mechanical repair for a snowmobile shop.

At this point Joshua isn't certain which scholarship offers he will accept, but he hopes to work on the family's dairy farm, and perhaps do some mechanical work on the side.



How different it is for children who go to school today. Many have had pre-school and kindergarten before attending first grade.

When I went to school, we walked despite the weather. My father, a farmer, did not stop his work to bring us home even if it rained heavily. Although, we had a neighbor who sometimes picked up his children and took us along home.

In first grade, I was given a desk without a bottom and so everything had to be piled neatly on the top right hand corner. I remember being quite sick one day, but there was no nurse and no telephone so I stayed at my desk and walked home when the day was over.

We had a pump in a small back room of our two-room school. My mother gave me a collapsible metal cup to use. Many years later at Lancaster Business College, I used the same cup and I still have it.

One room in our school had first to third grade and the other had fourth to sixth. When a teacher was ill, we were given a sixth grader as our substitute. One day this student asked us to write our multiplication tables. Now, we had not been taught this and I was very upset as I did not know how to do what he told us to do. Today I don't believe such a situation would happen.

Our school had a full basement but only a ground floor. This became very dusty over the years as we were sent there to play on rainy days. Next year this school in Oregon, Pennsylvania will be 100 years old. It is now used as a residence.

Today's children have a much wider experience both before school and during school. But, I'm sure we got a good education too even if we did not have elaborate trimmings as today's children do.

Tiny Bites Equal Big Calories

"I never eat between meals."

"Almost everything I eat is low fat."

Do you ever hear (or perhaps say) these comments, which are often followed by: "But why am I still gaining weight?" To answer that question we often have to zoom in closer and check those tiny bites of food we might overlook throughout the day.

For instance:

Bite 1: One fourth cup of orange juice remains in the carton. You might as well drink it, right?

Calories: 26

Bite 2: Two tablespoons of granola are left in the box. It is hardly worth returning to the cupboard. You add it to your serving of cereal.

Calories: 64

Bite 3: You add two teaspoons powdered cream substitute in the coffee. The coffee is really strong today. Adding creamer is the only way you can stand the taste.

Calories: 20

Bite 4: You take just a small sample of the cake. Well, maybe a second sliver would be OK too.

Calories: 73

Bite 5: OOPS! you forgot to tell them to leave the mayo off the hamburger you ordered for lunch.

Calories: 100

Bite 6: Add two mints. You also forgot to have them leave off the onions! Better have a mint or two for your breath, just in case.

Calories: 20

Bite 7: You take a chocolate kiss from your secretary's candy jar. You have to crank out a big report this afternoon. This is for medicinal purposes only!

Calories: 25

Bite 8: A second chocolate kiss from your secretary's candy jar. You finished the report — what better way to celebrate? And besides, it's just a tiny piece of candy.

Calories: 25

Bite 9: After work the office gets together to celebrate finishing the report. You just order mineral water, but surely a couple tablespoons of nuts can't have many calories.

Calories: 105

Bite 10: Cheese on crackers at the grocery store. After all, it's a small sample, and it's free.

Calories: 55

Bite 11: Two tablespoons of macaroni and cheese. You're trying out a new recipe. You taste as you cook to get the seasonings just right.

Calories: 54

Bite 12: Your new recipe of macaroni and cheese tasted great; however, there's a small amount left over. It hardly seems worth the effort to save one-fourth of a cup and you hate to toss it out.

Calories: 108

If these extra calories are eaten daily, it might be possible to gain as much as a pound a week. On average, an additional 3,500 calories above your body's needs can lead to a weight gain of a pound.

Ten 4-H'ers Top Fashion Revue At State Level

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) - Special honors went to 10 contestants at the annual State 4-H Fashion Revue held recently at Eisenhower Auditorium on Penn State's University Park Campus.

Fifty-eight regional finalists modeled outfits constructed as part of their 4-H projects. Judges based honors selections on construction skill, garment fit, appropriateness, and modeling poise. Cayce Bean, 14, daughter of Paul and Ronda Lee Bean of Schwenksville, was selected to participate in the 1997 National 4-H Fashion Revue at the National 4-H Congress to be held in Memphis, TN, November 28 - December 2. She made and modeled a red, blue and hunter green pigskin suede color-blocked jacket and matching skirt.

Last year's Congress winner, Christina Zylka, 16, from Mt. Pleasant and daughter of Susan and Edwin Zylka, made and modeled a fully-lined field coat, pants, and 100 percent knitted Prussian-style cardigan made of natural colors. A knitted beret completed her ensemble.

Glen Mackey, 15, one of two males in the show, modeled a single-breasted pin-striped suit from wood gabardine and a silk tie that he fashioned in his 4-H tailoring project. Glen Mackey is the son of Richard and Lori Mackey of Nicholson.

Michelle Seymour, 14, daughter of Jon and Shirley Seymour of New Castle, styled a beige and navy contour design tunic ensemble from a standard pant suit pattern. Oralyn Ann Folk, 16, also created a pant suit she had made from a linen-look rayon polyester. Her parents are Richard and Oralee Folk from Bernville. Pant suits were also made by Michelle Cornman, 17, daughter of Melvin and Betty Cornman of Carlisle; Amanda May, 13, daughter of Daniel and Judy May of Industry, and Julie Sechler, 16, daughter of Ricky and Audrey Sechler of Meyersdale.

A dark green 100 percent wool dress made with velvet collar and cuffs was modeled by Jenny Hoover, 15, daughter of Marty and Lois Hoover of Denver. Danille Sanderson, 16, daughter of Craig and JoAnn Sanderson of Carlisle, created a cranberry color swing coat ensemble lined with flannel-backed satin and wore high waisted white crepe trousers and matching hat.

Other than the Congress winner, the honors group were selected in no particular order. The judges were Janell Berti, fashion designer from Lancaster; Eleanor Garris, former Franklin County extension agent living in Chambersburg; and Margaret Hardy, veteran judge from State College.

All youths attending the State 4-H Fashion Revue were previously selected as county and regional winners. as part of the revue, they participated in educational workshops.

Thanks to Bruce Peterson, Parsonsburg, Md., for writing that a book called "Small-Scale Pig Raising" by Dirk Van Loon has a formula for estimating the hog's weight as follows: Hearth girth x hearth girth x length divided by 400 = estimated weight. Hearth girth is taken just behind the front legs. Length = base of tail to a point midway between ears. (Example: a 521-pound hog measured 28x28x25 divided by 400 = 491 pounds). The book may be purchased through Countryside Book Store 1-800-331-5691.

MULCH FETCHES MORE VEGGIES

Grow tomatoes like never before using an organic mulch called hairy vetch. The first step is taken in early September when you plow, rototill or disk the garden. Then, prepare permanent raised tomato beds, 5 feet from center to center and 6 inches high. If you're trying this method for the first time, inoculate vetch seed to establish the proper soil bacteria.

Seed the beds with hairy vetch, a winter-hardy annual legume. Seed should be placed just below the soil surface. Seed hairy vetch about 2 months before the ground freezes (before October 1). The hairy vetch will emerge in a week and grow to 5 to 6 inches tall.

Above ground, hairy vetch forms a mat; underground, the root systems grow into an extensive network. Foliage and root systems will work together, both above and below ground, holding the soil firmly to stop erosion.

Below-freezing weather causes the vetch vines to become dormant. Spring activates regrowth on the vetch. By May, individual vines will be 4 to 5 feet long becoming a thick stand about 2 feet high.

The day before planting, mow the vetch with a mower set 2 inches above the ground. Leave the residue in place on the beds. For small areas, cut the vetch manually and spread over the beds. Or, cultivate the hairy vetch into the bed with a rototiller. Next, transplant young tomato plants right through the mulch residue and into the underlying soil. Space the plants 16 to 26 inches in the row depending on plant vigor and variety. The killed vetch forms an organic mulch blanket around each plant. As it decays, the mulch feeds nitrogen and other nutrients into the soil.

Moisture is vital to establishing transplanted tomatoes, so you'll need to irrigate. Immediately after planting, install trickle irrigation lines on top of the vetch 3 to 4 inches from the tomato row. Fasten them in place with U-shaped wires.

As for fertilizers, a good stand of vetch provides sufficient nitrogen to meet from half to all that is needed by tomatoes. Follow fertilizer recommendations based on soil tests to ensure adequate phosphorus, potassium, and other essential micronutrients.

Stake and tie up the plants 2 to 3 weeks after planting and continue as they grow bigger.

During the first month after mowing, expect the vetch mulch to suppress weed emergence. After that, as the decomposition of the residue advances, weak seedlings are likely to emerge.

By summer's end, the tomato plants will bear an abundance of fruit. The organic mulch will decompose, and the year will have come full circle. Mow the old tomato plants and leave them in the field to decompose like the vetch mulch. Now it's time to plant hairy vetch the second year.

Similar systems can be used for other row crops like cantaloupes, snap beans, peppers, egg plant and sweet corn. This method improves soil and suppresses weeds.

For more information contact the Extension Office at (717) 840-7408 for the bulletin titled: Sustainable Production of Fresh-Market Tomatoes with organic mulches.

Any questions regarding the above article can be addressed to Tom Becker, Penn State Cooperative Extension at (717) 840-7408.

Home Alone

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — With back-to-school season upon us, some parents may find themselves facing the difficult question of whether or not their children are ready to be left home alone after school. But information is available to help make that determination, says a Penn State expert.

"Age is not a reliable indicator," says Anne Heinsohn, a recently retired associate professor of extension education in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "Not all 10-year-olds or 11-year-olds are alike.

"For instance, some 10-year-olds are quite ready to be on their own regularly, while some 12-year-olds are not," she explains. "Some children at these ages can be employed as reliable babysitters."

Parents should realize that some children never will be ready to be home alone, says Heinsohn. "A child's readiness depends on many external factors such as the neighborhood environment, the child's fear level and how siblings interact with each other," she says.

"And it isn't just the city environment that parents need to worry about; the issue is critical for families in rural areas as well," Heinsohn adds. "It can be scary to go home to an empty house when there is no one close by."

Penn State Cooperative Extension offers a set of publications, titled "On My Own and O.K.," aimed at helping families decide if their children are mature enough to care for themselves after school and to help prepare them for the experience.

The program, which is designed as a cooperative exercise for parents and children, outlines steps to ensure that kids know how to be safe when on their own. It includes a pamphlet that helps parents assess their child's readiness to be home alone by presenting mock scenarios. There also is a children's packet of six 30-minute lessons that address topics such as expressing feelings, safety skills, daily routines, caring for siblings, using free time for leisure and nutritious snacks.

To obtain a copy of the program materials, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county or the College of Agricultural Sciences Publications Distribution Center, 112 Agricultural Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802, 814-865-6713.

John Deere Total Mixed Ration Mixer

Delivering on tough demands

These owners demand a tough TMR. One with uniform mixing and thorough processing. The John Deere TMR delivers all that and more.

Glenn Paris, Berne, N.Y.:
"The uniformity of the mix is the absolute most important thing we look for – and this one can produce a uniform mix with relatively wet, heavy feeds without breaking itself to pieces."

Dan Themmel, Port Austin, Mich.:
"We went with John Deere over the other brands because it looked like it was built heavier. We don't baby our equipment. We want something that's going to last and function, day in and day out."

Brian Paulson, Columbus, Wis.:
"Our nutritionist works with several brands of TMR mixers, basically almost every one that's made. And this is his favorite mixer. The key is the design of its hay processor and top auger. It's what makes this mixer work for a dairy farm. It'll process any form of long-stemmed baled hay the way you want it . . . and how it needs to be processed."

See the John Deere difference for yourself. Visit your John Deere dealer and choose the TMR that's right for you: 270-, 350-, or 520-cubic-foot trailer-mount . . . or 520-cubic-foot truck-mount.

Despite No Game, MAMMA Night At Camden Yards A Success

TOWSON, Md. — John D. Hardesty, MAMMA Board Member and President of MC/VA Milk Producers Cooperative Association, Inc., pitched a no hitter during the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association (MAMMA)'s recent promotion at Camden yards. With 45,000 fans cheering him on, Hardesty threw the first and only pitch of the evening to All-Star Third Baseman and milk drinking legend Cal Ripken Jr.

With the help of MAMMA general manager Pat Purcell, John D. Hardesty, president of MD/VA Milk Producers, and Cal Ripken Jr. prepared their strategy for the first pitch.

Emily O'Hara, newly crowned Maryland Dairy Princess, and "That Milk Thing" pose in front of Camden Yard's magnificent view.

Although the scheduled American League game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Seattle Mariners was postponed at the last minute due to lighting problems, those who attended MAMMA Night at the Baltimore Orioles' Camden Yards didn't go away unentertained. The 7-foot tall, blue, furry milk spokescharacter, "That Milk Think," kept busy during pre-game festivities entertaining the anxiously-awaiting fans and chumming with Orioles' mascot, the Oriole Bird.

In other pre-game festivities sponsored by MAMMA, 14,000 children 14 and under received life-sized Cal Ripken Jr./"That Milk Thing" growth posters. The poster featured "That Milk Thing" looking up to his 6'2" hero with the message — "Milk helped Cal become the Ironman." It is the second annual growth poster combining the popularity of both MAMMA celebrity milk drinkers with a positive milk message.

MAMMA Night at Camden Yards is part of MAMMA's Orioles baseball sponsorship, which utilizes MAMMA's association with Ripken to promote milk through Orioles television and radio advertisements. 1997 marks the 15th year that MAMMA has sponsored Cal Ripken Jr. and Orioles baseball.

Pa. Dairy Princess Pageant Sept. 20

CLARION (Clarion Co.) — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc. has announced that its 41st Annual Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Saturday evening, September 20 at the Sheraton Harrisburg-East. A milk punch reception will start at 5:30 p.m. followed by a banquet at 6:30 p.m. and the coronation.

Twenty-nine county dairy princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess now held by Angela M. Werley of Berks County. The newly selected princess and two alternates will reign for a period of one year from September 1997 to September 1998. During that time, they will represent the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania speaking out for its number one agricultural industry and all dairy products.

The pageant, which will be held on the Saturday evening preceding the annual All-American Dairy Week, will end two full days of activities and interviews for the contestants. Four judges, all from out of state, will select a Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and two alternates from seven finalists.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess program is supported by Pennsylvania dairy farmers through their various advertising and promotion agencies: American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc., Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Mideast, the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and Allied Milk Producers with contributions from other dairy related organizations and individuals. Again this year, as the result of a grant from Sire Power, Inc. and several anonymous individuals, the awards to the winners will be: $1200 to the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and $600 to each of her two Alternates.

In addition, two contestants will receive $100 awards for outstanding dairy promotions for school children and, two others will receive $100 each for the two best speeches designed for adult audiences. As in the past, there will also be two $50 awards for compiling scrapbooks which chronicle their Dairy Princess activities to date. The contestants themselves will select the coveted "Miss Congeniality" award from among their own ranks.

For over 40 years the primary purpose of the Dairy Princess program in Pennsylvania is the promotion of the Dairy Industry and its products on the local grass roots level. Incentive Awards will again be given to the counties whose last year's Princess and her committee completed the incentive requirements.

In addition, an individual award of $300 will be given to the young woman who stood out as the outstanding dairy promoter during her county reign. This award, entitled the "Tina Shultz Memorial Award" is given in memory and honor of the outstanding young lady, who in May 1986 succumbed to cancer, during her reign as Huntingdon County Dairy Princess.

PA Dairy Princess and Promotion Services announces that the Saturday morning presentation competition will be open to the public free of charge. It will run from 8:15 a.m. until 12:00 noon in the Sheraton Ballroom. All interested persons are invited and urged to attend.

Saturday evening, September 20, promises to be an exciting evening for 29 county contestants and their families as well as for our Pennsylvania Dairy Industry. Tickets for the event are $20 per person and are available on a "first come" basis from Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., 214 South Street, Box 640, Clarion, PA 16214. (814) 226-7470. All tickets must be paid in advance and will be held for pick-up at the door.

What's Wrong With Grownups?

UNIVERSITY PARK (Lebanon Co.) — Some time ago, a group of ten-year-olds were asked the question, "What's wrong with grownups?" Their answers should give adults some food for thought.

One little girl said, "Grownups make promises, then they forget them, or else they say it wasn't really a promise, just a maybe. My mommy is doing this all the time. She always promises me something and then forgets it."

Another girls had this to say: "Grownups talk so much about money and bills and things like that that it scares me. They say money isn't very important, but the way they talk about it, it sounds like the most important thing in the world. But they forget my allowance too, and sometimes get upset when I ask for it. Is money that important?"

A very insightful boy said, "Grownups interrupt children all the time and think nothing of it. If a child interrups a grownup, he gets a scolding and a lecture about manners, or worse, maybe even a whipping if there is an important person present that everyone is trying to impress."

Another child stated, "Grownups don't do things they are always telling children to do — like pick up things, or be neat, or be on time for supper, or always tell the truth. My daddy never picks up his clothes and all Mom ever does is gets angry and yells at us kids and then picks up Daddy's clothes. She told him a couple of times and he said OK, OK — but he never picks them up.

Can you tell me why."

A little fellow had this to say: "Grownups talk a lot about people who are different — like different color races. They say nasty things about them, yet they tell us kids to love everyone, regardless of his race, color, or creed."

"Grownups never really listen to what children have to say. Sometimes they play like they are deaf or concentrating on a newspaper. They always decide ahead of time what they are going to answer. Sometimes I never get to finish what I'm saying before they answer, and then they say, 'You heard me.'"

"Grownups fight among themselves; neighbors won't speak to one another — but they tell us children not to fight."

One child wrote, "Grownups make mistakes but they won't admit them. They always pretend that they weren't mistakes at all — or that someone else made them."

"Grownups never understand how much children want a certain thing, color, shape, or size. If it's something they don't like, even if the children have spent their own money for it, they always say, 'I can't imagine why you want that thing'."

"Sometimes grownups punish children unfairly. It isn't right if you've done just some little thing wrong and grownups take away something that means an awful lot to you. Other times you can do something really bad and they say they're going to punish you, but they don't. You never know, and you ought to know."

A boy said, "Grownups tell children not to talk to strangers, regardless of where you meet them or who they are. Then a stranger walks up and says hello to the grownup you are with in the supermarket. He's a stranger, so you don't talk to him. When he leaves, you get a good lecture about being polite and speaking to people and not embarrassing people."

"Grownups pry into children's secrets. They always seem to think it's going to be something bad. They never think it might be a nice surprise."

"Grownups make kids wear all kinds of winter clothes — gloves, scarf, heavy coat, and boots — yet they go outside or stand in the open door without even a sweater on when the temperature is near zero."

"Grownups talk about how bad it is to take drugs and they say they would never take them. Yet, our medicine chest is filled with adult medicine or are giving me medicine."

A boy observed, "Grownups are always talking about being healthy and taking care of yourself, yet so many of them smoke cigarettes — they will make you real sick, won't they, and maybe even make you stop breathing?"

And finally, "Grownups are always talking about what they did and what they knew when they were ten years old — and it usually sounds as if it couldn't have happened the way they say it. But grownups never try to think what it's like to be ten years old RIGHT NOW!"

FFA Members Attend Washington Leadership Conference

Jaymey Beaver, Becki Day, Debby Becker, Theresa Martin, and Tanya Weaver of the Grassland FFA Chapter in New Holland, attended the 1997 Washington Leadership Conference, July 22-27 in the nation's capital.

This conference is an activity of the National FFA Organization in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Education.

The week-long program helps FFA members improve their leadership skills and prepare for leadership roles in their chapters, communities and their future careers. They attended sessions on self-confidence, goal setting and team building and participated in discussions on personal development, motivation and citizenship. Former FFA officers led all sessions.

Students also increased their understanding of the nation's heritage with visits to Mount Vernon, the Smithsonian Institution, Arlington National Cemetery, the Jefferson Memorial and other historic sights in Washington, D.C.

A highlight of the week was a visit to the office of Sen. Rick Santorum of Pennsylvania.

The chapter's FFA adviser is Clifford Day, who also attended.

Calcium Intake Instruction

At the Pennsylvania Osteoporosis Society, Dr. Heaney, left, and John Abruzzo MD, director of the Thomas Jefferson University Hospital Osteoporosis Center, talk about calcium intake.

SOUTHAMPTON (Philadelphia Co.) — Robert Heaney, MD, of Creighton University's Department of Medicine recently gave a presentation for physicians and nurses at The Children's Hospital of Philadelphia. Sponsored by Dairy Council, Inc. Dr. Heaney's lecture, "Overview of the Importance of Osteoporosis - Pediatric Perspectives: Factors in Forming Bone Mass," focused on the need for adequate dietary calcium intake, particularly for growth and development in childhood.

Heaney also spoke to a group of physicians at the Pennsylvania Osteoporosis Society while in Philadelphia.

Want to learn more about how to increase your calcium intake through food? Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Health & Nutrition Focus, c/o Dairy Council, Inc., 1225 Industrial Blvd., Southampton, PA 18966-4044, to receive a copy of Food First, a new brochure that highlights calcium-rich foods in the five food groups.

Apple Marketing Board Elects Officers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Board recently elected a new slate of officers to lead their activities in the coming marketing year.

Gail McPherson, New Park, was elected as chairperson of the 1997-1998 board. She has served on the board since 1991 and, most recently, served as vice chairperson from 1994-1997.

Together with her husband, Paul, they have owned and operated Maple Lawn Farms, Inc for the past 25 years. They grow apples, peaches, nectarines, cherries, apricots, blueberries, and corn on the 1,650-acre farm. In addition, they operate a successful farm market and "U-pick" business. This year Maple Lawn Farms is celebrating its Golden Anniversary as a family farm corporation.

McPherson also serves as a director on the American Agri-Women board, as president of Pennsylvania's Agri-Women chapter, and as vice president of the National Peach Partners.

Gordon Post, owner/operator of Post Apple Scientific located in North East, Erie County, will serve as vice chairperson. David Benner, president of El Vista Orchards, Fairfield, Adams County will serve as secretary/treasurer.

The board honored Kay Hollabaugh of Hollabaugh Brothers, Biglerville, Adams County, for her service and leadership as chairperson of the board from 1994-1997.

American Farmland Trust Accepts Nominations For Award

WASHINGTON, D.C. — American Farmland Trust, a national farmland conservation group, welcomes nominations for its second annual Steward of the Land Award.

The $10,000 award recognizes outstanding efforts by an individual farmer or farm family in land stewardship, agricultural conservation policy, or the use of environmentally and economically sustainable farming practices.

The award honors the memory of AFT's late founding board member, Peggy McGrath Rockefeller. Throughout her life, Rockefeller dedicated herself to conserving the nation's agricultural resources. AFT's board of directors established the Steward of the Land Award to salute farmers who exhibit the same deep-seated commitment to farmland conservation and protection as Mrs. Rockefeller, who died in 1996.

In January, the Wayne McGinnis family of Baltimore County, Md., received the first award for its strong, vocal support of state and national farmland protection programs and the usage of environmentally sound farming practices. The family accepted the award at a special luncheon of AFT's board of directors attended by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman and Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Richard Rominger.

The award includes a $10,000 cash stipend, special memento inscribed with the award recipient's name, and a plaque on permanent display at American Farmland Trust's National Office in Washington, D.C. AFT's board of directors will review the nominees, select the winner.

Nominations must be received at AFT's National Office by 5 p.m. on December 1. For award brochure and nomination form, individuals should contact: Shannon Weller, Steward of the Land Award Coordinator, American Farmland Trust, 1920 N. Street, N.W., Suite 400, Washington, D.C. 20036. Phone: (202) 659-5170; fax: (202) 659-8339; e-mail: sweller@farmland.org.

New Management Group Takes Over At East Gate Grain Facility

REEDSVILLE (Mifflin Co.) — Purina Mills, Inc. and a group of local businesses has assumed management of East Gate Feed & Grain. The new management group said the East Gate facility will serve area farmers by purchasing excess grain and providing storage for feed grains.

Purina Mills is joined in the East Gate venture by four Purina Dealers. All participants are equal partners in the 250,000-bushel grain drying and storage facility. A board of directors made up of representatives from each organization is responsible for developing policies for the operation of the facility.

"Purina Mills and its partners in the East Gate joint venture are committed to supporting the grain and livestock producers of central Pennsylvania," said Kurt Loudenback, division sales manager at Purina Mills. "East Gate is an important resource for the local agricultural community, because it provides a reliable, stable market for grain and a storage facility for local livestock producers."

Hammer Discharge

Patented Free Swinging Hammer Expeller

The expeller on all ProTwin models features 15 forged steel hammers mounted on a 2 1/4 shaft The hammers pivot on 1/2 bolts with nylon anti seize type bushings that allow free movement The expeller rotates at over 800 RPM allowing each eight pound hammer to swing down into the material peeling it off and slinging it underhand in a fine spread pattern with no clumps The 3 wide free swinging hammers absorb shock and tolerate most foreign objects Each hammer is faced with a work hardening manganese steel wear plate for longer life and low cost replacement The adjustable shroud allows easy hammer clearance setting for optimum spread pattern width This proven hammer expeller design enables fine spreading control and material calibration through the combination of the hydraulic door opening and ground speed

Rear Drive Compartment*

The right auger is driven at the rear and is shear pin protected Bearings chains and sprockets are easily accessible for routine maintenance

Shields removed for illustration only
Do not operate without shields in place and functioning

"WE WILL NOT BE UNDERSOLD!" "DELIVERY AVAILABLE ANYWHERE!"

Herbert Hoover Farney says, "I didn't think they could mix it."

Steve Dale, and Herbert Hoover Farney
Silvery Falls Farms Lowville NY

Mr Farney is talking about mixing 11.5% long stem dry hay by ration weight in the Knight Reel Auggie 3450, which he and his sons decided to purchase in September of 1994

Herbert was born the day Herbert Hoover was elected president

The Farneys previously owned a three-auger Oswalt stationary unit They state that the "old mixer tended to ball material up, especially in wetter forages, while the Reel Auggie 3450 'fluffs' the ration"

The Farney's herd average is up about 1,000 lbs , and they have a higher protein test as well They milk 160 Holsteins, and feed a total of 260 head They like the low power requirement — the 390 cubic foot machine is powered by a John Deere 2030 tractor

3000 Reel Auggie TMR Mixers
Now available in seven sizes
with capacities from 147 to 600 cubic feet

FFA Student Leaders Meet In Nation's Capitol

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The 102 state FFA officers here recently moved around the nation's capital and spread their enthusiasm for agriculture. While they proudly represented the individual states whose names were embroidered on the backs of their blue corduroy jackets, they were united by a common goal: to strengthen agricultural education and FFA in the next year and beyond.

The group, representing each state, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, attended the State Presidents' Conference to prepare for their responsibilities as delegates and committee chairs for the 70th National FFA Convention in Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 13-15.

During the six-day conference, which began July 22, state officers attended workshops, met with government leaders to discuss the importance of FFA and agricultural education, visited national landmark, and spent time at the National FFA Center in Alexandria, Va.

Sen. Larry Craig (R-Idaho) and Sen. Sam Brownback (R-Kansas), both former state FFA officers, met with the group during the conference, as did Sen. Richard Lugar (R-Indiana).

Also the students met with Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman. They attended a Congressional breakfast hosted by Congressman Bill Barrett (R-Nebraska), visited the U.S. departments of agriculture and education, met with their individual congressional leaders and received a briefing from representatives of the Clinton Administration at the Old Executive Office Building.

A new activity during this year's conference was a special tour for student leaders to meet with agricultural education and FFA partnering groups in the Washington, D.C. area. They visited the National School to Work Office, the American Vocational Association, the National School Boards Association, and the National Skills Standards Board.

STRETCHING WINTER FEED SUPPLIES

The mid-summer drought experienced in most of the Northeast virtually eliminated second cuttings of hay for the region.

While supplies were plentiful earlier in the summer, many beef producers were forced to feed some hay in July. As a result, winter feed supplies may be short or nominal.

Here are a few things to help stretch the winter feed supply.

•Wean calves early. It may be more efficient to put high quality feed supplies, including fall pasture, directly through calves instead of feeding cows to make milk. In most cases, calves will need supplemental grain at .5 percent to 1 percent of their body weight daily to achieve the same level of growth as if they were still nursing and on good pasture. Nutritional needs of the cow herd are relatively low for spring-calvers in the next three months, so feed the cows the poorer quality hay or pasture. Keep an eye on condition of the cows though, as there is a limit to how much weight can be lost and still be reproductively efficient next spring. Two-year olds weaning their first calf will be the most critical group.

•Rent a stalk field. Corn fields that have been picked or shelled are an excellent source of fall feed for the cow herd. Effective use of these fields can reduce hay usage up to one big bale per cow. Be sure to use portable fences and allow only one-fourth acre per 10 cows per day. This practice can drastically extend the time available for using the stalks.

•Find a by-product. Pennsylvania and the Northeast has many food-production plants in place and many of them produce waste that is good cow feed. One of the best feeds for wintering cows is apple pomace since it has few restrictions on its use. The exception is that no urea should be fed with the pomace. Other products that can be used include cooked and uncooked potatoes, vegetable waste, and several types of snack foods.

•Use good feeders. There is a lot of difference in the amount of hay that is wasted in different types of feeders. In general, half of the hay unrolled on the ground is wasted. Conventional ring feeders usually have 8-10 percent wastage.

The large feeders with an inverted cone and solid bottom have about 2-3 percent waste. The differences do not sound large until you consider the difference in wastage between an inverted cone feeder and a conventional ring is one bale of hay for every 20 bales that are fed.

•Find open cows. This was a tough year for breeding in many herds because the worst heat and drought were in the heart of the breeding season. Be sure to pregnancy check the herd this fall so your limited feed supply is not going to a "freeloader."

PURINA DAIRY HERD PROFILE

"THE WAY THEY EAT TELLS THE STORY"

For the Huntsman family, home has been PA Fair Valley Farm located east of Martinsburg in Blair County since 1942. Randy Huntsman has been driving tractor here since he was six-years-old. And now his children are also growing up on the farm.

Randy and his wife Karen bought the cows and machinery from dad in 1988, and the farm in 1994. This year, a new, modern, double-eight, parallel milking parlor that is totally computerized with milk meters to take daily weights and an automatic identification sort-gate system was installed. The number of cows in this commercial dairy herd went from 120 cows to 247 cows with a goal of 300 cows by next March. The herd averaged 84 lbs. per day on the last test.

The feeding ration is a simple TMR program that includes haylage, corn silage, shelled corn, and Purina's Super EXT pellets at 38%, balanced for 80 pounds in the bunk. For Randy, the most noticeable difference in Purina feeds is that the cows like it.

"I couldn't get the dry matter into the cows," Randy said. "If we had 100 cows, I'd mix for 90 and they wouldn't clean it up. The first day we put Purina feed in the bunk, everything was the same as before except the grain. The cows ate it up and bawled for more. Before they ate because they had to eat. Now they eat because they want to. I wouldn't believe it if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes."

And the feed cost was noticeably lower too. While production held even, feed cost per cow per day was 40 cents lower. Now production is increasing too. And herd health improved almost immediately, especially hoof problems.

The Purina team that works with the Huntsman herd includes Bedford Farm Bureau, Scott Waugerman, farm consultant; Rob Hinton, dairy specialist; and Andy Krug, dairy specialist.

"We like the Purina people we work with and the cows like the feed," Randy said. "The way the cows milk and the way they eat tells the story."

Randy Huntsman is very much at home in the new, computerized milking parlor.
